

Big Welcome Given Constitution Party At Blairsville, Ga.

Citizens Display Enthusiastic Interest in Constitution's North Georgia Expedition.

TECH RADIO OUTFIT
GOES TO DAHLONEGA

Rest of Party Will Leave on Friday Morning to Make Inspection Trip to Blood Mountain.

BY H. H. WIMPEE,
Constitution Staff Correspondent.
Blairsville, Ga., June 1.—(Special.) Despite a continual downpour of rain throughout the day, The Constitution forestry expedition reached Blairsville, the seat of Union county, at 7 o'clock tonight, after traveling forty miles from Clayton.

Indicative of the enthusiastic interest in The Constitution's enterprise, the townspeople displayed a most admirable spirit of hospitality following the party's arrival. A delightful dinner was tendered the mud-stained tourists.

The party continues to receive hearty welcome as it passes from town to town. After an enthusiastic reception in Clayton Wednesday night, the tourists were royally entertained at Hiwassee early Thursday afternoon with a splendid feast.

Visit Blood Mountain.
Although the rains shut off from view the greater portion of distant scenery along the route, the government officials participating in the north Georgia forestry tour gathered a pretty good idea Thursday of the natural scenic beauty of this vicinity. Friday morning the party leaves for Blood Mountain to get a view of the surrounding country.

The Georgia Tech radio unit, after being lost for hours, finally joined the main body of the caravan of automobiles at Clayton, and Thursday morning went to Hiwassee.

The radio men reported that they attempted Wednesday night to communicate with The Constitution, but the delicate instruments had been damaged Wednesday by constant jolting along the unusually rough roads.

Leave for Dahlonega.
Another effort to establish communication with WDAW, The Constitution's station, will be made. To avoid more rough roads, the radio unit did not accompany the remainder of the party to Blairsville, but proceeded to Dahlonega, where they will join the expedition when it reaches that point.

The dinner tendered the tourists Thursday night by citizens of Blairsville was a most enjoyable event. Addresses were made by representatives of the county, and The Constitution was warmly praised for its efforts to bring to the government's attention the great possibilities for transforming forest lands in the mountainous portion of the state into a public wonderland.

Members of the automobile party also spoke. Government and state officials stressed the need for good roads, and each speaker endorsed The Constitution for its progressiveness in organizing the tour.

"Banco" Trick Story Told by Witness At Memphis Trial

Memphis, Tenn., June 1.—Visions of how he was going to make large sums of money on the stock exchange, later to realize that he had lost $25,000 through an alleged "confidence" swindle were described to the jury in United States district court today by E. B. Carter, of Lynchburg, Va., in the trial of W. L. Huntley, Jr., former bank official, who is on trial on charge of using the mails to defraud.

Patrick Furrey and Joseph Lynch, county defendants of Huntley in the alleged swindle case, pleaded guilty Monday and are expected to take the stand for the government in the Huntley trial.

Carter described the methods by which he said Furrey and Lynch gained his confidence when he was visiting Hot Springs, Ark., and of later transactions in Little Rock and Memphis. According to Carter's testimony he was to put up $25,000 to close an alleged oil stock deal by which the trio were to profit more than $100,000 each.

Carter claimed that Huntley, in his capacity of banker, collected $20,000 in checks and drafts from his bank in Lynchburg, and loaned him $8,000 and $10,000 worth of liberty bonds, which he paid over to Lynch and Furrey, he declared. When his suspicions were aroused he said, he went to Huntley for his advice. He said the banker told him that the proposition seemed to be all right and that he would probably receive his money back.

The stenographer of the bank of which an officer identified a letter introduced in evidence and which was dictated and signed by Huntley written to a Little Rock bank, in connection with the case. Carter in closing his testimony said Huntley agreed him to give no publicity to his troubles.

MAXIMUM PRICES OF COAL AGREED ON BY OPERATORS

Voluntary Agreement for Strike Emergency Is Reached "To Prevent Panic in Coal Prices."

CONSUMERS CAN KNOW
IF TREATED FAIRLY

Hoover Tells How Coal Users Can Check Up
Equity of Price Charged by Retailers.

BY ROBERT J. BENDER,
United News Staff Correspondent.
Washington, June 1.—A majority of coal operators have agreed with Secretary Hoover upon emergency maximum prices during the present mine strike, thus to "prevent a panic in prices such as took place in the last coal pinch."

And now, said Hoover, after concluding his conferences with the operators Thursday, "every consumer who is interested in knowing that he gets a square deal" can find out whether operators are sticking to their "moral agreement," and the retailers co-operating with the operators. Here is the system he laid down for determining a "square deal."

"Check the freight rates. Compare them with the maximum price agreed to by the operators. Inquire from the dealer whether he is buying contract coal and at what rate. Make proper allowances for retail distribution."

Moral Question.
"If consumers are unwilling to take this degree of interest in negotiating for coal," Hoover declared, "it is a certainty that no one can help them. The government has no authority in the matter for this is purely a moral question and one of co-operation. The consumers who are not treated fairly may appeal to this department in Washington and their case will be inquired into."

Hoover said the prices agreed to were in all cases maximum and at lower figures than the maximum agreed upon will continue to do so. He expressed regret that "a small minority have refused to co-operate and are demanding higher prices." As the agreement stands, it embraces the following:

Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee and eastern Kentucky have accepted $3.50 per ton as the maximum price for spot run of mine coal.

Pennsylvania Unsettled.
Pennsylvania has yet to be dealt with. Its operator committee will have a conference after meetings among the operators of that state on the price proposition are completed. This will probably be next week.

Alabama has accepted $2.20 a ton as the maximum for spot run of mine coal. A different situation exists in that state by virtue of considerably reduced costs of operation, etc.

Western Kentucky operators have demanded $4.25 per ton for mine spot and, said Hoover, "I feel I am not justified in advising the public that this is a fair maximum price."

Brooklyn Parents
Draw Up By-Laws
To Curb Daughters

New York, June 1.—Parents in Brooklyn have inaugurated their own "blue laws" against their flapper daughters and, through the Parents' league, hope to spread their edicts throughout the city. They have instituted a curfew law with midnight as the hour for festivity endings and have set the following flapper rules:

Parties to be held only on Friday and Saturday nights.
Simple refined clothes, no postage stamp skirts.

Chaperons must be present at all parties and accompany girls home.
Parents to censor all plays and movies.

Improper dancing forbidden, no clenching.
No refreshments to be served after dances.

The parents have fixed these rules to apply to girls between 15 and 18 years of age.

"Girls older than 18 will be left to the rules of their own parents," says Mrs. A. Affeld, president of the league.

POLICE ARE PROBING
RECORD OF PRISONER

Evidence implicating Charles Zachary, negro, held at police station on a charge of highway robbery, in a number of recent hold-ups and purse-snatchings, has been gathered by Detectives Sturdivant, Campbell and Bulard, it was learned Thursday. Zachary lives in the rear of 141, Pulliam street. He was recently arrested on suspicion, pending investigation into his recent activities.

Mayor Orders Arrest Of Women Who Wear Knickerbockers on Streets

Traverse City, Mich., June 1.—Orders to the chief of police from Mayor Swanton, directing arrest of any woman or girl appearing on the streets here wearing knickerbockers will stand, despite the storm of protest they have occasioned, the mayor announced today.

The mayor has been criticized by local women's clubs and pastors, who declared his order was too drastic.

The mayor said that before issuing the order he had held a conference with the city attorney and been informed that he could prosecute any woman violating the order.

The rule will apply to tourists as well as local residents, the mayor announced.

REPORTED REVOLT BRANDED AS FALSE BY MEXIC CHARGE

In Special Interview With Constitution Representative, Tellez Charges Plot
to Lower Price of Bonds.

SAYS PRESS STORIES
WITHOUT FOUNDATION

Hints International Scandal in Accusing Attempt to Block Financial Plans of Obregon Regime.

BY GLADSTONE M. WILLIAMS,
(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution.)
Washington, June 1.—(Special.) What appears to be an international scandal, involving attempts on the part of certain individuals to force down the price of Mexican bonds, and to frustrate financial negotiations between banking institutions of the United States and the Mexican government, was disclosed today in a special interview between Senator Manuel C. Tellez, charge d'affaires of the Mexican embassy, and a representative of The Atlanta Constitution.

Senor Tellez labelled revolutionary reports from the border republic as "entirely unfounded."

He asserted that Mexican bonds have dropped several points since the reports received widespread publicity, which fact, he declared, coincided strongly with the arrival in New York of Finance Minister Senor de la Huerta, who is now in that city to discuss questions of the Mexican external debt.

Bulletin from Embassy.
Earlier in the day the Mexican embassy issued the following bulletin:

"Reports published by some American newspapers conveying the impression that a new and serious revolutionary outbreak has broken out in Mexico are entirely without foundation. These reports are clearly part of a campaign against the Mexican government and coincide with the arrival at New York of Finance Minister Senor de la Huerta, who is now in that city to discuss questions of the Mexican external debt. Normal conditions prevail throughout the country as heretofore. The recent uprising in the state of Tabasco was promptly dealt with by federal forces. After visiting Tabasco, General Serrano, minister of war, is now on a tour of inspection in the states of Yucatan and Campeche."

The presence of Diaz, at the head of 15,000 armed men, in Guatemala, as indicated by press dispatches, was without foundation, Senor Tellez declared.

Diaz, he said, was now in the United States somewhere between

TWO ARE INJURED IN AUTO SMASHES

Miss Katherine Gershon and Julius E. Gerson Are Hurt and Two Arrests Are Made.

POLICE URGED TO ACT.
Due to noticeable increase in the number of automobile accidents, J. L. Beavers, chief of police, Thursday issued a special order instructing members of the department to give particular attention to the enforcement of the traffic and speed laws.

Two automobile accidents occurring within a period of one hour and thirty minutes of each other Thursday morning resulted in the serious injury of two persons and in the arrest of two drivers, who were charged with reckless driving.

The injured were Miss Katherine Gershon and Julius E. Gerson.

FORD TURNS DOWN COMMITTEE OFFER FOR SHOALS DEAL

Manufacturer Insists on Inclusion of the Gorgas Steam Plant in Properties He Bids For.

VIRTUAL ULTIMATUM
GIVEN TO COMMITTEE

Says Final Proposal Has Been Made and Asks Vote by House on Proposition.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, June 1.—Henry Ford presented a virtual ultimatum on the question of disposition of Muscle Shoals in giving to the house military committee today his views on the "model" offer for the Alabama properties drafted by the committee.

The Detroit manufacturer in a letter laid before the committee by one of his representatives, J. W. Worthington, declared he could not consent to elimination of the Gorgas, Alabama, steam power plant from the properties the government proposes to lease or sell and in doing so declared that if his revised offer is rejected, "then I must understand that the acceptance of my offer for Muscle Shoals as a whole and not in part," is refused."

Mr. Ford agreed to other modifications of his offer as made by the committee in its model offer but he wanted the committee "to consider this proposal (the one presented by him today) as final and that no further changes should be expected."

Request was made by the manufacturer that the committee send his final offer to the house for a vote on acceptance or rejection.

"If congress votes acceptance of my offer," Mr. Ford continued, "we will get on the job at Muscle Shoals at once; but if congress rejects it that will be the beginning of a more determined effort on my part to save Muscle Shoals for the benefit of the public."

Immediately upon receiving Mr. Ford's letter the house committee went into executive session to consider it. Members would not forecast what action would be taken, but in some quarters it was believed that the committee finally would vote to meet Mr. Ford's demand as to purchase of the Gorgas plant.

FORD EXPLAINS POSITION ON OFFER.
Detroit, June 1.—The Gorgas plant is "absolutely essential" to the Ford plan for making a cheap, high-grade fertilizer at Muscle Shoals, Henry Ford said today in explaining his reason for refusing to exclude the plant from his offer to lease and operate the shoals project.

"The Gorgas plant would be essential to economical operation of Muscle Shoals nitrate plants until dams No. 2 and No. 3 could be completed, which might take from three to four years," the manufacturer said. "No coal mines are located near the nitrate plants. Fuel has to be hauled ninety miles, bringing about a tremendous overhead charge. But at Gorgas, 91 miles from the nitrate plants, the Alabama Power company has a small steam power plant at the mouth of a mine. The government built a large addition to the plant with the idea of

Washington Sees Political Tinge In Ford Warning

Statement on Result of Shoals Bid Rejection May Mean Campaign Issue.

BY ROBERT J. BENDER,
United News Staff Correspondent.
Washington, June 1.—Henry Ford has warned congress that if it rejects his bid for the Muscle Shoals nitrate, fertilizer and power reservoir "it will be the beginning of a more determined effort on my part to save Muscle Shoals for the benefit of the public."

His warning recalls that a year ago, when Ford first launched his amazing proposal to take over from the government this gigantic war baby, one of the leading counselors of the republican party at that time made this comment to the writer:

"Ford with Muscle Shoals, producing cheaper fertilizer and lots of it for the farmer, hiring thousands of men at his high wage levels; building new communities—even cities—about the development; adding new waterway projects and developing new power, would be the most potential independent political figure in America."

Already Household Name.
At that time the speaker did not venture a forecast as to which would win out—the elements that would oppose Ford's offer because of the tremendous power it would turn into

Film Celebrities Try to Untangle Matrimonialisms

Valentino Bigamy Hearing Begins; Constance Talmadge Gets Divorce, Pickfords "Carry On."

Los Angeles, Cal., June 1.—Hollywood film celebrities were so busy Thursday unscrambling their own impetuous romances that some picture lots did little business in the way of making celluloid love stories.

Rudolph Valentino, the current idol of feminine film fans, could not do a lick of work because he had to appear in court to explain his romance with Winifred Hudnut, of New York, which the state regards as bigamous.

Chic Constance Talmadge was relating with downcast eyes, the story of her hasty marriage, and hasty separation from John L. Pielogio, New York tobacco importer, and so effective was her recital that the court granted her an interlocutory decree of divorce. She cannot marry in California for a year.

Pickford Matrimonials.
And Mary Pickford was first "very, very happy" when told that the Nevada supreme court had upheld her divorce from Owen Moore, and then not quite so happy when informed later that Attorney-General L. G. Fowler, of Nevada, had announced he would ask for an immediate re-hearing of the case by the state high court.

While Mary was telling how happy she was that her marriage to Douglas Fairbanks was upheld, her brother Jack telephoned to their mother that he was engaged to Marilyn Miller, the star of "Sally."

A great crowd of film friends, tourists, and the plainly curious attended the court sessions. Women, from gray-headed grandmothers, to the youngest of flappers, crowded in to hear the testimony in the Valentino case.

Jean Acker on Stand.
They gasped with surprise when the star's former wife, Jean Acker, testified that her name before her interlocutory decree of divorce was "Mrs. Rudolph Guglielmi." Valentino did not look up when his former wife,

ANOTHER STEEL MERGER READY

Attorney for Midvale, Republic Iron and Inland Companies Announces Unification Plans.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
New York, June 1.—Thomas L. Chadbourne, attorney, late today announced adoption of a plan whereby properties of the Midvale Steel and Ordnance company, Republic Iron and Steel company and Inland Steel company will be unified under ownership of Midvale. The name of the new corporation will be the North American Steel corporation.

The terms of the plan were outlined as follows:
All existing obligations of the three companies are to be assumed by the unified company. Existing preferred and common stocks will be changed into preferred and common stocks of the unified company. The new preferred stock is to have a par value of $100 per share, is to be 7 per cent cumulative; is to be redeemable at $115 per share and accrued dividends, and is to be convertible for twelve years into new common stock at the rate of five shares of new common for four shares of new preferred. The common stock is to be without par value.

Assets of Companies.
"All assets of the three companies are to be owned by the unified company except the Nicetown plant (armor-making, ordnance and forgings), of the Midvale Steel company, which is to be transferred to a separate company with a capacity of $300,000 shares without par value.

"Participation of the new stock will be as follows:
"Under the plan Midvale company's stockholders will receive 75 per cent new common stock and 25 per cent stock in the company formed to take over the Nicetown plant.

"Republic Iron and Steel preferred stockholders to receive dividends in cash, to date, when the new preferred dividend begins to accrue and 100 per cent in new preferred stock.

Plan More Capital.
"Republic Iron and Steel common stockholders are to receive 25 per cent new preferred stock, which is to be purchased from them at $95 a share and 70 per cent new common stock.

"It is intended to provide $20,000,000 additional cash working capital from the sale of common stock."

Negotiations are pending. Mr. Chadbourne said, for the acquisition of other properties, but irrespective of the outcome of these negotiations Midvale, Republic and Inland companies propose to proceed with these merger plans.

Financing will be handled by Kuhn, Loeb and company.

The Republic Iron and Steel company has blast furnaces at Birmingham, Ala., and Youngstown, O., steel works, tubeworks, sheet and bar mills

BIG PROSPERITY SHOWS PROMISED FOR CITY, TODAY

Attractions That Were Called Off Thursday on Account of Rain Will Be Offered.

AUTOMOBILE PARADE
TO BE GIVEN FRIDAY

At Night Water Carnival, Diving Girls and Dance Festival Will Furnish Entertainment.

The Progress and Prosperity week program, abandoned for two days because of continued heavy rains, will be resumed at 10 o'clock Friday morning when the combined Ford owners' parade and the "Old-Timers' parade" will pass through the downtown streets.

The regular program for Thursday, which was to have been one of the most brilliant of the entire week and which includes the dance festival and the beautiful Venetian water carnival, will be given Friday. An attempt will be made to present these features regardless of the weather, it was stated Thursday.

Several thousand cars have registered for the Ford parade, it is stated. Registration cards are being distributed by local Ford dealers.

An interesting section of the big automobile parade will be that depicting the development of the automobile industry. Many unusually old machines will be seen in the procession. The parade will start from Peachtree street and North avenue at 10 o'clock.

Headquarters for Progress and Prosperity week announced Thursday that just as many of the Lakewood attractions will be given Friday as possible.

The big events will be the dance festival under the auspices of the Civic club, and the Venetian water carnival, under the auspices of the Lion's club, to be presented at Lakewood at 8 o'clock. In magnificence and both spectacles are expected to rival the Romance of the Rose pageant of Monday night.

Miss Marjory Smith will be queen of the water carnival. The queen's royal barge will be escorted by 40 other decorated gondolas to a pier of flowers in front of the grandstand, when the coronation will take place. In the event of rain the coronation will be held in the automobile exhibition building.

"Call of Spring."
More than 200 dancers will appear in the dance festival, of which Miss Wilmette Perdue is to be queen. The first episode will be "The Call of Spring," presented by the children's division of the Atlanta Women's club.

Pupils of Mrs. C. E. Lafontaine will present "The Wedding of the Winds;" pupils of Miss Nellie Sullivan will present "La Cinqtaine;" and Indian war dances from "Natomia" will be offered by pupils of Miss Lucille Wells.

Pupils of Miss Norine Sears will present a classic ballet. West End children will participate in a Maypole dance.

An exhibition by diving girls will be another big feature of the evening. Male divers will also offer stunts. Other events will include the usual band concerts, and park attractions will be open.

Mathilde's Mother
Weeps at Thought
Of Oser Marriage

But Mrs. McCormick, at Least Temporarily, Drops Legal Fight.

BY ALEXANDER F. JONES,
United News Staff Correspondent.
Chicago, June 1.—Her eyes red from weeping, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, emerged from the offices of her attorney here late Thursday, and it was announced by the latter that she would file no more charges at this time against Max Oser, middle-aged Swiss riding master, to prevent his marriage with her 17-year-old daughter, Mathilde.

Mrs. McCormick had promised through her attorney, Charles S. Cutting, that she would file additional charges against the all-but-penniless horseman to prove him a fortune hunter, plotting to get control of the millions to which Mathilde is heir.

Whether this means that she has given up her desperate effort to keep her daughter from a marriage with a man more than twice her age, or that she will attempt to compromise with her multi-millionaire divorced husband, Harold F. McCormick, and by agreement effect a postponement of the wedding until she can get more evidence regarding Oser's character, was a matter of conjecture.

It is believed that the opposition of

EXCESSIVE RAINS
DO HEAVY DAMAGE TO GEORGIA CROPS

Loss to Cotton in Northern Part of State Reported and Little Corn Has Been Planted.

MAY PRECIPITATION RECORDS ARE BROKEN

Southern Part of State Not Injured—Peach and Melon Crops Hurt, Says
J. J. Brown.

BY HENSON TATUM.
With rainfall reaching 7.95 inches, 4.53 inches above normal, all previous records for May precipitation since the local weather bureau was established in 1879, were broken by the months just ended.

Georgia uplands in practically the whole section of the state north of Macon have become soggy, and flooded streams have spread over bottom lands that are not exceptionally well elevated.

Tremendous crop damage has resulted in the northern part of the state, as well as over much of the entire cotton belt, according to reports received by the weather bureau in Atlanta and the state department of agriculture.

Small Crop Planted.
The majority of farmers in north Georgia have been able to plant only the partial cotton acreage they had intended, and an extremely small acreage of corn, comparatively has been planted. Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Brown said Thursday.

Cotton has suffered more from low temperatures accompanying the rain than from the rain itself, he stated. The young plant has received a serious setback on account of the cold. It has now grown too late to plant cotton for anything like a normal crop and the early and the late cotton crops will have to face the boll weevil menace.

Mr. Brown declared he looked for the total yield to be very short. He pointed out that there is danger of a corn crop failure. Farmers will be prone to save their cotton from the grass when they can cultivate the ground again. This will delay their corn planting until the season will be far advanced, particularly for upland planting. Peas and hay crops are expected to be planted extensively.

The peach and the melon crops

CITY WILL FACE $100,000 DEFICIT

$1,500 Is Voted by Finance Committee to Help Entertain Members of Legislature.

Indications Thursday, as the finance committee neared the end of its task of compiling the June budget, were that the city will end the year with a deficit of $100,000—a deficit of approximately $300,000, if $200,000 worth of tax fix is not included as cash assets.

The committee went into executive session Thursday morning and only at the expense of appropriations already made was it able to bring the actual shortage down to $100,000, it was said.

One of the committee's appropriations Thursday morning was the sum of $1,500 voted as a hospitality fund to be spent on entertainment for sons of the Georgia legislature during its session this summer.

A big barbecue is included in the plans of the city fathers. Mayor Day suggested the fund. He said Atlanta has not been showing the proper appreciative spirit toward the legislature, and the city government itself should lead in steps toward more cordiality.

The mayor, Councilman Edgar Watkins and Councilman Robert A. Gordon were appointed as a committee to plan the program of entertainment.

Before going into executive session the finance committee voted an appropriation of $3,500 for the purchase of property on which to build a new fire engine house to serve the northeast section of Atlanta.

SELF-DEFENSE PLEA
CONSIDERED PROBABLE

Roy Jackson Tells of Visit to His Home by Mrs.
Vinson, Who Was Hunting Her Husband.

Testimony by two nephews of Mrs. Cora Lou Vinson, on trial in the Fulton superior court for the murder of her husband, Dr. W. D. Vinson, to the effect that she had on numerous occasions threatened to shoot her husband, concluded the third day of the trial, which began Tuesday.

"Yes, sir," exclaimed Roy Jackson, nephew of the defendant, "my aunt came to my house Christmas night, 1919, and said she would shoot the hell out of Dr. Vinson, Willie and Tillo B. too, before they'd ever get any of that property. Willie and Tillo B. are Dr. Vinson's sons."

J. S. Jackson, also a nephew of the accused woman, testified she had stated to him she would kill Dr. Vinson, and one time, in his presence, told Dr. Vinson she would pick up an ax and knock out his brains if he "did not get the hell out of there."

Self-Defense Plea.

While the state is trying to show that the murder of Dr. Vinson was premeditated, and was caused by the desire of Mrs. Vinson to prevent her husband or his two sons by a former marriage from gaining possession of certain property he had decided to her, the defense, in its cross-examination of the state's witnesses Thursday, showed that it would attempt to prove self-defense as the motive for the killing.

Roy Jackson, who was the last witness Thursday, stated that his aunt, Mrs. Vinson, had come to his house Christmas night, 1919. "She had been drinking or was on one of her high horses," he said, "and said she had been hunting for Dr. Vinson, and if she had found him she would have killed him."

Judge John D. Humphries ruled out the testimony about the drinking, as it was a matter of opinion on the part of the witness.

Jackson told of an instance in 1921, when Mrs. Vinson was sick, and Dr. Vinson sent him to the house to see if he (Dr. Vinson) could do anything for his wife.

Sends Doctor to Wife.
"Dr. Vinson asked me to go to the house and find out if he could do anything for Mrs. Vinson, the witness stated. 'I went there and found her in bed and she said she wanted a doctor. I went back and told Dr. Vinson and he said he had been trying to get one for her, but that she was so cranky she wouldn't have some-thing he had tried to get for her, but he would see that she got a doctor, and he finally sent one to see her.'"

"Nearly every time I saw her she said she would kill Dr. Vinson and the two sons before she would let them have the property." When questioned as to her exact words, the language used was not printable.

On cross examination Jackson declared that he had no ill feeling towards his aunt, who is his father's sister.

"Didn't Mrs. Vinson hide you one night when the police had a warrant for you for beating your father," queried Judge New Morris, counsel for the defense.

"No one ever hid me," came back the witness, "and I never saw any police."

"You were going so fast you could not see the police," asked Judge Morris.

"Maybe," was the reply.

Asked About Father.

"Don't you know that you are mad with your aunt because she harbored your father and gave him food," he asked.

"No sir," said the witness.

"What did your aunt tell you about a couch in Dr. Vinson's office," counsel asked.

"She told me that Dr. Vinson had been having women up there and said she had gone up there and out the couch all at once."

"Don't you know that your aunt was Dr. Vinson's third wife," Judge Morris questioned.

"I don't know anything about it," was the answer.

Boykin Takes Witness.

When the defense had concluded, Solicitor Boykin again took the witness.

"Was your aunt ever married before she married Dr. Vinson?" asked Mr. Boykin.

"Well her family says she was, and my family says she was, but I don't know whether she was or not."

"Wasn't she married to a man named Tallen?" the solicitor asked.

"Didn't she have a daughter who went by the name of Mary Tallen?" he supplemented.

"I don't know whether she was married or not and I don't know who Mary's father was."

J. S. Jackson Testifies.

J. S. Jackson, a brother of Roy Jackson, testified that his aunt sent for him the latter part of 1920, and that when he arrived at the house she was "cussing" Dr. Vinson out about some property.

"She called him every kind of a vile name I ever heard of, and told him she would take an ax and knock his brains out if he didn't get the hell out of there."

"What did you do then?" asked Judge Morris.

"Dr. Vinson got out of the house and I went with him," he returned.

"The first of the year, in 1921," the witness continued, "she came to my house and said Dr. Vinson had entered suit to get back his property and that she would see him burning in hell, and would kill him, and would kill Tillie, all of them, before she'd ever let them have any of that property."

According to Attorney John Dorsey, of Marietta, who is one of the counsel for the defense, both the Jackson boys are at odds with Mrs. Vinson because she took their father, who was separated from his wife, into her house.

"Simp" Jackson, the father of the boys, and brother of Mrs. Vinson is now in the chain-gang, according to the attorney, and was arrested at the home of Mrs. Vinson.

Would Not Speak to Father.

Roy Jackson, on the stand, said he never would speak to his father again, that he had just cause to stop speaking to him. He said he did not stop speaking to his aunt, that she stopped speaking to him.

Willie Arnold, a 19-year-old boy, who was employed at the drug store on Marietta street, at the time of the shooting, also was one of the witnesses called Thursday afternoon. He became badly mixed up upon cross-examination and appeared to be frightened.

Attempts of the defense to put up a self-defense plea was shown when Judge Morris questioned County Policemen Tom Davis and Jack Carroll, who arrived at the doctor's side shortly after he was slain. Both were questioned as to whether a pistol could have been removed from the deceased before they arrived. All witnesses agreed that Dr. Vinson did not have a revolver.

"I was at Dr. Vinson's side soon after he was shot," Officer Carroll said. "I removed a pocketbook and a few other articles from his person. I do not see how any one could have reached him before I did."

Believed Him Unarmed.

Officer Davis also expressed opinion that Dr. Vinson was unarmed.

"Mr. Carroll and I were among the first to arrive. I don't see how it would have been possible for any one to have taken a revolver from his person."

"I spent most of my time with Mrs. Vinson. At that time she told me, 'I killed my husband because he sued me for divorce. He will never get one now.'"

Dr. G. W. Edwards, a personal friend of Dr. Vinson for many years, who has an office above the Pierce Drug store, testified regarding a conversation he had with Mrs. Vinson in 1920, when he said she threatened to kill her husband, as she was dissatisfied with the way he was handling the property.

"Did she say anything about another woman?" he was asked.

"She did not. It was about the property," he replied.

Judge Morris asked Dr. Edwards if he had not taken a pistol from Dr. Vinson's pocket immediately after the shooting and Dr. Edwards denied that he had. He also denied that he was prejudiced against Mrs. Vinson, but said that he had resented her coming to his office once and getting some pictures belonging to him, and Dr. Pierce.

Taxi Driver Called.

John Mann, taxicab driver, was the first witness called and related how he had driven Mrs. Vinson to the scene of the killing.

"I had driven Mrs. Vinson before," Mann testified. "The afternoon of the shooting she called me and asked me to come to the rear of her home on Ponders avenue."

Had Shades Drawn.

"When she got in she requested that the curtains be drawn, saying that she probably would have some conversation with her husband and did not wish to be seen."

"We went by a circuitous route, at her request, and reached the drug store, where her husband's office are located."

"When we reached the store her little daughter was out in front and said her father had not arrived. In a few minutes the doctor came and Mrs. Vinson followed him into the store."

"In a few minutes I heard four shots and Mrs. Vinson ran out and jumped in the car. About that time police men arrived and took her into custody."

The state is represented by Solicitor John A. Boykin, Assistant Solicitor Ed Stephens and Attorneys Branch and Howard.

Consults With Lawyers.

Mrs. Vinson, who had shown little interest during the morning session, began to consult with her attorneys during the testimony of her two nephews. Several weeks ago a jury in the superior court held Mrs. Vinson sane and refused to take any stock in her special plea of insanity.

At the trial on the special insanity many of her relations with Dr. Vinson were brought out. Divorce proceedings and counter-charges were in the courts at the time of the shooting.

Dr. Vinson alleged in his suit for divorce that Mrs. Vinson had been trying to get all his property, and forced him to transfer much of it to her. At the time of his death he was seeking to recover it.

In a counter-suit, Mrs. Vinson charged cruelty and neglect, and stated Dr. Vinson had repeatedly beaten her before her friends. A week before the shooting Mrs. Vinson was ruled sane by a board of medical examiners, having been found sane by the board for commitment to the state institution for the insane.

Near Fist Fight

Enlivens Debate

Over Tariff Bill

Washington, June 1.—A personal encounter between Senator McCumber, republican, North Dakota, and Senator Robinson, democrat, of Arkansas, was narrowly averted tonight after a stormy debate over the dye sections of the tariff bill.

Advancing to the center aisle to meet each other, the senators found Senator King, democrat, Utah, standing between them. Then Senator Poinsett, republican, Washington, moved across the chamber and took Senator McCumber by the shoulders.

The North Dakota senator resisted and for a moment they were clinched. The disagreement between the two senators came over a question of adjustment. The senate had been held 45 minutes beyond the time agreed upon and some of the feeling that had been displayed during the day was vented in the discussion of the tariff measure.

Senator McCumber wished to hold the senate so that a vote might be had on the bill schedule and Senator Robinson objected, moving to adjourn and declaring that unless Mr. McCumber agreed to end the session there would be no more unanimous consent recurrences for recesses from day to day, such as the senate now is working under.

The trouble passed almost as quickly as it appeared.

The long deferred fight over the dye stuff provisions of the tariff bill broke tonight in the senate with Senators King, democrat, Utah, and Frelinghuysen, republican, New Jersey, as the central figures. This promised to be the longest and bitterest controversy that has taken place during more than a month and one-half of senate consideration of the tariff measure.

One early development was the announcement of Senator Smoot, ranking republican, of the finance committee, that the committee would insist upon the provision of the bill under which opponents of the chemical foundation and other American holders of former German coal tar dye patents, trade marks and copyrights would have been protected completely through the shutting out of dye imports bearing any trade mark, label, brand or impress registered in the United States patent office by any person domiciled in the United States, unless such persons gave written consent to the importation.

Many Patents Seized.

More than 4,500 of such patents, trade marks and copyrights owned by enemy aliens were seized during the war by the alien property custodian and subsequently sold to the chemical foundation at a price which it has been charged in both senate and house represented only by a fraction of their value. Reference to the seizures and sale was made tonight by Senator King, and was followed immediately by Senator Smoot's announcement.

There was opposition to this provision of the tariff bill in both the republican and democratic sides of the chamber and a sharp fight over it had been anticipated. Members of the finance committee held that it was not designed to protect the holders of former German dye patents, trade marks and copyrights, but to protect holders of trade marks and brands under which certain other derivatives of coal tars are manufactured and sold in this country.

Both the duties on dyes proposed by the committee and the provisions for a modified embargo on these commodities are involved in the present fight. Under the embargo provisions the existing licensing system of dyes importation would be continued for one year after the passage of the tariff bill and extended for an additional year at the discretion of the president. The duties proposed, which would become effective upon the expiration of the embargo, are 60 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents a pound on crude dye-stuffs and 60 per cent and 7 cents a pound on intermediates.

The house rates were 80 per cent and 7 cents, and 35 per cent and 7 cents, respectively.

Amendment Approved.

After a long fight the senate approved committee amendments proposing duty of 80 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents a pound on crude coal tar dye products. The vote was 37 to 20, three republicans—Keyes, La Follette, and Norris—opposing the amendment and one democrat—Kendrick—supporting it.

Consideration of committee amendments to the provisions dealing with duties on glass and glassware was completed today with approval of reductions from the house rates on glass bottles and unpollished cylinder, crown and sheet or common window glass.

On motion of the committee the senate struck out a proviso under which imported glass bottles would have been taxed at a rate of not less than 50 per cent ad valorem.

Specific rates proposed by the house and ranging from 50 cents per gross to one cent per gross remained unchanged.

FOURTH DISTRICT COMMITTEE TO MEET

LaGrange, Ga., June 1.—(Special.) A meeting of the members of the democratic executive committee of the fourth congressional district has been called for by Chairman A. H. Thompson, to be held at Warm Springs, at 10 o'clock, June 10.

The object of the meeting is to make arrangements for holding a democratic primary election for congressman from this district.

The Canadian war memorial, which is to be erected either on Hill 60 or Vimy ridge, in northern France, is dead and missing, will be one of the most impressive of the monuments in the war zone of the western front. It will be 135 feet in height, with a width of 225 feet.

RIVERS AT FLOOD

STAGE IN MID-STATE.

Macon, Ga., June 1.—The Ocmulgee river registered 19 feet here at 9 o'clock tonight, a rise of 8.5 feet in twelve hours, and indications are that it will continue to rise during the night. Families are deserting their homes in the lowlands. Other streams in middle and southern Georgia also are out of their banks.

The reading of the Ocmulgee river here was one foot above flood stage at 8:30 o'clock tonight. A rise of three feet during the night was anticipated.

At Milledgeville the Oconee river had reached 17.9 feet at 8 o'clock and a further rise was expected.

Farmers report heavy losses to corn and wheat crops and if the rain continues much longer there also will be heavy losses to peaches and watermelons.

During the past twenty-four hours 2.63 inches of rainfall has been recorded here. There have been only nine days in the past thirty-two days without rainfall.

HEAVY DAMAGE

IN SPALDING COUNTY.

Griffin, Ga., June 1.—(Special.) The recent heavy rains and hail in some sections of Spalding county have done considerable injury to the crops of oats and wheat. The farmers here in the midst of harvesting the grain when the rains started. The rains have continued for seven days and much damage has resulted. In some sections of the county heavy hailstorms have occurred. The hail has done some damage to the fruit, especially to the Elberta peach, which is now about the size of a large marble. This damage, however, is not heavy.

TWO ARE INJURED

Gershon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gershon, of 181 Fulton street, and Julius E. Gershon, tailor in the Peachtree Arcade building, who lives at 305 South Pryor street.

Miss Gershon was injured about 10 o'clock Thursday morning, when the automobile of H. Finkelstein, in which she was riding, was struck by a heavy motor truck driven by a negro, Joe Jordan, who, according to information furnished police, was racing with another truck.

The collision occurred in front of 489 North Boulevard where Mr. Finkelstein had brought his car to a stop to repair his motor. Miss Gershon remained in the auto, and the truck going north along Boulevard, crashed into the rear of Mr. Finkelstein's machine. The force of the impact threw Miss Gershon violently against the seat of the auto and upon the floor. She was carried home for treatment.

The negro was arrested by Call Officers E. A. Newport and J. G. Bonan and driven by a negro, John Amey. He was carried to the Grady hospital, where it was found he suffered a badly mashed and bruised back, cuts about the head and shoulders.

After a thorough X-ray examination and after his injuries had been dressed, he was carried to his home at his request.

Patrolman W. D. Wallace, who investigated the accident, arrested the negro under charge of reckless driving, and he was held in default of a $500 bond.

Galt to Face Court.

A charge of reckless driving was preferred against J. C. Galt, of 54 Park avenue, following an accident at Five Points late Thursday afternoon, in which two persons were injured by his automobile.

According to the police, a white woman whose name was not ascertained, was struck at Peachtree street and Edgewood avenue by the machine driven by Galt and slightly injured. After stating the woman, it is said, the machine knocked down J. T. McCoy, a negro, of 33 Brown street.

Officer H. E. King, on duty at Five Points, made a case against Galt following an investigation of the accident.

Fourteen thousand ex-service men in New England are suffering with nervous diseases contracted while in service, and 60 new cases are being sent each month to the hospitals. Many neurasthenic cases are traceable to poison gas.

FORD TURNS DOWN

COMMITTEE OFFER

obtaining enough power to develop electric current for transmission to the shoals over high tension cables.

"That was good industrial judgment. It saved carrying the coal, and good business sense dictated it."

"When the dams are completed and the river is at full flow, we could develop approximately 1,000,000 horsepower. But as summer comes and the water lessens, water power decreases. The power thus cut off at the dams has to be replaced by steam power."

"The government has built on reservation No. 2 a 60,000 horsepower steam plant. When the water begins to recede we would need an alternative power supply that could be built up gradually as waterpower fell, and then cut it down as the water power came back. This is another reason why the Gorgas plant is indispensable."

"Mr. Ford charged certain Wall street interests were behind the opposition to his offer, and that the Alabama Power company is financed by British capital."

Cheaper Fertilizers.

Referring to his proposal to manufacture fertilizer at a low price, the manufacturer said:

"The statement that fertilizer can not be made at Muscle Shoals at less than present market price is a fraud. We can make it for a great deal less, because we would cut out four profits now going to manufacturers and middlemen by making a complete fertilizer and selling it directly to the farmer."

"Mr. Ford expressed displeasure in the delay over the decision on his offer."

"For almost a year," he said, "we have been negotiating with the government and still have not decided a matter that in private industry would have been decided at a single board of directors' meeting. We have hoped steadily we could get to work down there this summer."

Destiny of Country.

"Congress is willing to spend a hundred millions at Muscle Shoals for war, but in three years and six months it has not spent a nickel there for peace. The destiny of our country, agriculturally and industrially, lies at Muscle Shoals. If the project can be developed as an example of what can be done with water power a new epoch in American agriculture and industry will be born, an epoch in which the American farmer and workman will be better off than he ever has been before."

"If the selfish Wall street interests which, behind the scenes, have been delaying and misrepresenting our proposition, will come out in the open and make the government a better offer than mine, I'll fall right in and co-operate and help them and the government in any way I can," he added.

"But if they think they can get over a less worthy private offer I notify them now that the fight for Muscle Shoals, so far, has been but a skirmish. We will exert every resource at our command to keep Muscle Shoals out of the hands of Wall street."

COMMITTEE UNDECEIVED.

Washington, June 1.—Two committees of congress today resumed study of plans for developing the government projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., rating states and markets, as well as pleasure riding, cheaper for the farmer."

In recent weeks, "Ford-for-pro-dent" clubs have been launched in isolated communities beginning with some of his friends in Detroit. Ford, personally, apparently has taken no cognizance of this development. Nevertheless because Washington is so intensely political in its thought right now, his warning to congress that if it turns down his Muscle Shoals offer, his fight has only begun, awakes speculation.

Possible Campaign Issue.

Ford in the past has confined his efforts in concentrating public opinion on an issue, to widespread advertising campaigns. He might therefore choose this method by making Muscle Shoals an issue in every congressional and senatorial contest this fall.

And then, again, it might ride along under his nursing until, by the time 1924 rolled around, he had brought it out as a full fledged issue of the presidential campaign, with Henry Ford the logical leader in the movement.

PINCHOT DEFENDS NOMINATION COST

Philadelphia, June 1.—Gifford Pinchot who publicly stated that he spent $120,000 to win the Pennsylvania republican nomination for governor in the recent primaries, would do the same thing again "if it were necessary to defeat an organized machine," in a statement issued Thursday.

He made this clear in answering attacks by Senator Pat Harrison, Mississippi, a democrat, who declared the Newberry case "sinks into significance" beside the Pinchot statement of campaign expenditures.

"The money I contributed was honestly, legitimately and economically spent and honestly reported," Pinchot said in commenting on Senator Harrison's attack.

"The wonder is that an intense machine could be defeated without vastly larger expenses. I am well pleased with the result and under the same circumstances, I would do exactly the same thing again."

ANOTHER FIGHT ON CITY MARKET PLAN REPORTED

Rumors were current in city hall Thursday that a movement will be launched in council by foes of the public market on Edgewood avenue to erect a new police station on the market site and to demolish the market building.

The reported program is to sell the present Decatur street police station, regarded as inadequate, and to devote the proceeds to the erection of a new building. On the first floor it is proposed to have the recorder's court and the executive offices, and on the second floor the city hall.

Advocates of the market will strongly resist such a movement, it was declared.

Rescue Workers Are Now Seeking Missing Texans

Has any one seen anything of the party of seven, which left Texas for Atlanta more than a week ago? The travelers are lost, either in Atlanta or en route, and their male relatives are almost frantic because of their disappearance.

Charles and G. W. Foster, aged 41; Marvin Smith, 25, and Ellis Smith 17, walked into Atlanta Thursday morning, having come all the way from west Texas, about 1,000 miles, by passing automobiles and local freights. Their womenfolk and less robust men had been put on a train at their former home after the failure of the crops and started to Atlanta.

Their belongings were expressed to Atlanta direct and were here when the men had walked from Texas reached the city, but no trace had been found of those that were started by train, with their tickets bought as far as Fort Worth, Texas.

Colonel Horace Burton, head of the local emergency home of the American Rescue Workers, was appealed to and the men were furnished with the first meal in three days. Night-fall came, and having no other way to provide for the men, Colonel Burton sent them to a hotel.

Word was received here several days ago of a party answering the description given of those missing, which was in Meridian, Miss., trying to secure funds to pay their way to Birmingham.

Travelers' Aid and Associated Charities in Birmingham have been appealed to by Colonel Burton to be on the lookout for the lost women, but because of the lack of information, much concern is felt for their safety.

Until the men are able to secure work and their women are found they will be provided for by the American Rescue Workers.

YORK ANNOUNCES HE IS CANDIDATE FOR TAX ASSESSOR

Harry York, manager of standpat headquarters during the charter campaign, came out Thursday as a candidate to succeed City Tax Assessor John Malone, it was announced at city hall. J. C. Little, former councilman and former police commissioner, was mentioned as a probable candidate.

A standpat division developed over the race. Councilman J. R. Nutting announced that he would fight for re-election of Mr. Malone. The election will take place at the first meeting of the council in July.

When Mr. Nutting headed the majority that supported him. "He's one of the most efficient men the city has ever had as tax assessor," said Mr. Nutting, "and I intend to do all I can to re-elect him."

Youths Must Register Friday If They Want Free Swimming Course

Despite the heavy rains Thursday night, hundreds of youths have already signed up to take the free swimming lessons offered by the Central Y. M. C. A. Although the enrollment closed at 10 o'clock tonight it is expected that this number is more than half of those who will take the lessons.

All that is necessary for enrollment is the name of the parent and a permission to take lessons.

SACRED HEART SCHOOL HOLDS COMMENCEMENT

Seven girls will receive diplomas at the annual commencement exercises of the Sacred Heart school, which will take place this evening at 8:15 o'clock in the Marist college auditorium.

The school is closing one of the most successful terms in its history. An addition this year is the commercial course, which was completed by several young women in a most satisfactory way, while several others made rapid advancement. This course has been established as an aid to graduates of the high school, who wish to pursue a commercial education in order to enter the commercial world.

The following program will be rendered at the commencement exercises this evening:

Processional, Miss Florence Moriarty. Chorus, Miss Mary McLaughlin. Valedictory, Miss Mary Lynne. Chorus, "The Star." Distribution of diplomas and address by Rev. J. A. Horton. A. Horton, S. J., has completed the high school course and will receive diplomas. Miss Mary Lynne, Miss Mary Teresa Donnelly, Miss Mary Michel Lynne, Miss Nancy McLaughlin, Miss Florence Moriarty, Miss Mary Ellen Smith and Miss Grace Louise Veitke.

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR TO FACE TRIAL SOON

Hearing on charges of reckless driving against Everett Kreeger, 15-year-old driver of an automobile that ran down and fatally injured John Head, 9-years old, Tuesday afternoon on Atwood avenue will begin in the juvenile court next Wednesday, it was announced at the court house Thursday. Kreeger is at liberty under $1,000 bond.

Witnesses to the accident say young Kreeger was speeding out of Gordon street racing with another machine when he struck young Head, who, it is said, was crossing the street at the time. He saw the cars bearing down on him, became frightened and dodged one of them out to step in the path of the other.

Funeral services for the accident victim were held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the West End Baptist church, the Rev. B. D. Gray officiating. Interment will be in the View cemetery with Harry G. Poole in charge.

FISHING PRIVILEGE RULES ANNOUNCED

Rules governing fishing privileges in Tallulah, Burton and Rabun lakes have been announced by Preston Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power company, owners of the lakes. The regulations follow:

No one will be allowed to fish without a permit. Permits may be taken only with a pole and with red reel.

Each day for any one person is limited to not over 10 rainbow trout, minimum of 9 inches; not over 10 bass, minimum of 9 inches; not over 20 crabs, not over 25 minnows, which number must not exceed above limit for any one variety.

Permits may be secured at the general offices of the company in Atlanta and from the superintendent at Tallulah Falls, or his authorized representative.

PLAN CELEBRATION OF DAVIS' BIRTHDAY

Appropriate memorial exercises will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the legislative hall of the state capital in celebration of the birthday of Jefferson Davis. The program has been arranged by Camp 150, U. C. V., and Atlanta chapter, U. D. C.

Confederate veterans, the Spanish war veterans and the world war veterans are asked to meet at the Ben Hill statue in the capitol at 2:30 o'clock Saturday, and go in a body to the legislative hall.

The principal address will be made by Captain Scott Candler, of Decatur, a world war veteran. The Rev. T. P. Cleveland, chaplain of Camp 150, is to offer the invocation.

Mrs. Benjamin Parker, chairman of music, has arranged a musical program which includes a quartet from Georgia Tech, "The Yellow Jacket Four," and an orchestra furnished by courtesy of Karl Karstson, of the Federation of Musicians.

Mrs. Charles Phillips, assisted by Mrs. Robert G. Stephens, will bestow three crosses of honor. The veteran to receive crosses are J. M. Baker, D. F. Light and J. B. Slayden.

A feature of the program is to be the unveiling of an oil painting of President Davis by Mrs. John A. Verdue, past president of Atlanta chapter. The picture to be unveiled will be presented by the Atlanta chapter of the National Association of Daughters of the Confederacy, which meets in Birmingham next November.

$150,000 APARTMENT HOUSE CONTEMPLATED

Erection of an apartment house at the northwest corner of Piedmont avenue and Thirteenth street at an approximate cost of $150,000, is being contemplated, it became known Thursday when the purchase of the corner by John H. Whisenant, local builder, from the Raoul estate, was disclosed.

Mr. Whisenant stated Thursday afternoon that plans for the building have not been completed. The structure will occupy a lot 137x200 feet. The Parkview apartments, at the northwest corner of Piedmont avenue and Fourteenth street, also is owned by Mr. Whisenant.

The Thirteenth street corner was sold for the Raoul estate by the Perdue Realty company. The consideration was $18,500.

ATLANTA LEADS DIXIE IN ENLISTING MARINES

For the third consecutive month Atlanta led all other cities in the south for the number of enlistments in the United States marine corps, which was made possible when Captain George Bower, U. S. M. C., recruiting officer, accepted 82 southern recruits during May. More than 330 applicants from all sections of the south applied for enlistment at the local recruiting station at room 510 Postoffice building.

The following Georgians were among the 82 recruits accepted by Captain Bower during May: Young French, McConnel, Nicholson; Howard Watson Burton, Royston; Norman C. Jones, Waycross; Charles C. Terry, 40 Cooper street, Atlanta; William Ross, Davis, Clarksville; John E. Stowers, 378 Spring street, Atlanta; Byron K. Powell, Savannah; William D. Stephens, Woolsey; Raymond E. Nichols, Newman; Harry Shanks, Savannah; Charles Okey Whitlow, Whigham; Thomas H. Marshall, Douglasville; Corydon S. Griner, Savannah; Herbert G. Lankford, Bowersville; Frank James Shaw, Blackwell, Ga.; McKinley Mullinax, Woodstock; Owen Marshall Moore, Norcross; Leonard Dever Carroll, Brunswick; Okey Barnes, Homer; Jake Cowart, Dawsonville; Elmer E. Bailey, New Albany; Eulia C. Hicks, Adrian; John Bowden, Kentwood; James A. Reddy, Fitzgerald; Edward E. Mitchell, Dunwoody; and Dennis L. Mill, of Dawson. Of these recruits three had prior service in the marine corps, five in the army and two in the navy.

BIG ISSUE PUBLISHED BY CHRISTIAN INDEX

The Christian Index for this week is devoted to the one hundredth anniversary of the Georgia Baptist convention, and a special edition of one hundred pages, tells something of the story of the development of the denomination through the past century.

The cover of the magazine is in colors and carries the pictures of the men who have served as presidents of the convention. The presidents are Jesse Mercer, 1822-1840; William M. Sanders, 1841-1846; Thomas Stokes, 1847-1851; David E. Butler, 1852-1857; P. H. Mell, 1858-1862; J. H. Kilpatrick, 1863-1865; J. W. Northern, 1866-1868; S. Y. Jameson, 1869-1871, and John D. McCall, 1872-1876.

President Rufus W. Weaver, of Mercer university, has prepared a history of the convention which is the leading article of the issue. In this paper Dr. Weaver traces the development of the denomination from the first church, organized in 1772, to the present time when there are more than 2,500 white Baptist churches in Georgia with a membership of 380,000.

Other leading papers in the issue are by Dr. Albert Henry Newman, of Macon; Dr. D. W. Key, of Atlanta; Warren Grice, of Macon; J. O. Martin, of the state department of education, Atlanta, and A. Chamlee, Hawkinsville.

Flapper Ballet Will Be Feature Of Elks' Jollies

"That Atlanta 'flappers' have more style, more 'pep,' and more willingness to work to achieve a result, is the opinion of Freeman Gosden, the professional producer in charge of the big Elks show, 'The Jollies of 1934,' which will be given at the auditorium next week.

"I've worked with them in Chicago, Oakbrook, Kalamazoo and all points west," said Mr. Gosden, after the rehearsal at the Elks club Thursday night, "and I have never found a set of young girls so adaptable and so quick to learn. And as for good looks—well, Atlantic City's boardwalk has nothing on the Peachtree parade."

Mr. Gosden has been working the 40 members of the "flapper" ballet, overtime this week, training them in a dozen song and dance numbers. One of them is "Georgia," which should make a great hit, and another is the musical "Jo, La, La," filled with snap and attractiveness. The costumes for the principals and chorus have arrived and been tried on, and the wardrobe mistress of the production is busy making the necessary fittings.

"The Jollies" opens next Tuesday night at the auditorium and runs through five nights. It is the annual show of the Atlanta Elks and it promises to be the biggest and best.

PARALLEL PARKING OF AUTOS APPROVED

Parallel parking on Atlanta's streets of automobiles and other vehicles was approved Thursday afternoon by the council ordinance committee, which also reported favorably on a measure to limit the speed of all city owned automobiles and trucks, except the cars of the fire department, police department and Grady hospital, to 12 miles an hour within the city limits.

Both measures were referred to the committee by council. Automobiles are now permitted to park at an angle to the curb, but the new amendment would require that they be parked parallel, with enough space between cars for easy ingress and egress.

The measure to curb the speed of machines driven by city employees was passed as a result of a number of recent accidents in which city owned cars have figured.

REPORTED REVOLT BRANDED AS FALSE

New Orleans and San Antonio, Tex., according to latest advices received at the embassy.

Refuting other revolutionary reports, the embassy official stated that the former revolutionary leader, Zapata, whom press dispatches have identified with uprisings in the state of Morelos, has been dead for three years. The erroneous dispatch, he said, was characteristic of the other reports being circulated.

Further reference to Diaz, who is a nephew of former President Porfirio Diaz, deposed by Madero, Senator Teles said that the reported number of men for an armed invasion of Mexico.

Villa is Peaceful.

Pancho Villa, he said, was working in close co-operation with the Oregon government, and was peacefully engaged in the management of his farms in the state of Durango. As evidence of this concord between the two former rebel leaders, Senator Teles pointed out that last year Villa donated 200,000 bushels of wheat to government officials for distribution among the famine areas, and was working materially in the construction of schools in his state and section.

Commenting on internal affairs of the border republic, the embassy official further declared that foreign trade between the United States and Mexico has increased 65 per cent in the last two years and number of United States tourists in the country has increased more than 50 per cent. With official recognition from the United States, he expressed the opinion that the trade between the two countries would be increased to an even larger degree.

U. S. Recognition Status.

The Mexican attitude on matters of recognition was found in two statements by a special official. First, to please demands as far as possible, and Second, trying to do the very best under the circumstances. The main difference between the two republics have been settled, he stated, which is the case with reference to the old question, he pointed out.

When questioned as to the treaty negotiations proposed between the two countries, the embassy official expressed in a peculiar way the sentiment shared by a large number of United States government officials and publications of the country:

"There is an old Spanish axiom prevalent in Mexico," he said, which says, 'We should exchange good morning greetings before the visitor comes into the house.'

REINSTATEMENT PLEA FOR POLICE ADVERSED

The police committee of council Friday afternoon turned down a resolution designed to permit a person who has served on the police force five years or more and resigned, to be reinstated upon application, provided he has not reached more than 45 years of age and can pass the required physical examination. The resolution had been referred to the committee by council.

REVISED SCHEDULE TO INCREASE RATES

Substantial increases in freight rates from Richmond to Atlanta, Augusta and Savannah will result, if the schedule of class rates proposed by southern carriers is adopted, it was disclosed at the Thursday afternoon session of the interstate commerce commission rate hearing when J. W. Perrin, of Wilmington, assistant freight traffic manager of the Atlantic Coast Line railway, took the stand and offered rate comparisons.

On first-class freight the rate to Savannah from Richmond would be 44 cents per hundred pounds greater than the present rate, it was shown. An advance of 27 cents per hundred pounds would be in effect between Richmond and Augusta, while the increase in the Richmond-Atlanta rate would be 12 1/2 cents. The figures are based on first-class freight.

For some classes the rates would be slightly reduced.

Mr. Perrin testified after Brooks Brown, assistant freight traffic manager for the Southern railway, completed his testimony in the early afternoon. Mr. Brown introduced voluminous exhibits to substantiate his contention that southern roads have not been as prosperous of recent years as carriers in the eastern and southwestern states.

Walters Will Meet.

The Atlanta Walters' alliance will hold its regular meeting at the Butler street Y. M. C. A. Friday evening at 9 o'clock when matters of importance will be discussed. S. Sherman is president and Robert L. Foster is secretary of the association, which is composed of the colored waiters of the city.

BELL Hops Fight for Guest's Tip

A QUICKLY subdued commotion arose yesterday in one of our downtown hotels.

It seems that a traveling man mentioned to one of the guests, in an indiscreetly loud voice, that he could give him a tip on when to get a regular man's sized drink without molestation and at just the ordinary price.

Two bellhops crowded in to get the tips, too, and in their eagerness one got a bit rough. The traveling man, naturally, led to loud words and in just a jiffy the two youths were in a regular fight in the lobby.

The traveling man separated them good-naturedly and said: "There isn't anything to fight over. I'll give the tip to you and to every one here. What I started to say was that the best drink I've had in many a day was a cold bottle of NuGrape I bought just down the street. (It fitted my thirst the snugest of any drink I've had in years.)" ## "IN EXECUTIVE SESSION."

One of the most gratifying results of the recent charter election is the inhibition the vote of the people has put upon secret sessions of the school board.

It is a matter of record that much of the criticism and strife and turmoil involving the Atlanta school system in the past has been occasioned by action taken by the board of education in meetings held behind closed doors, with the public excluded, and nobody present but the commissioners themselves.

The practice of conducting public business in secret, regardless of the board, commission or official addicted to it, is bad.

It ought to be discouraged; and the people of Atlanta have occasion to felicitate themselves upon the fact that so far as the administration of the affairs of the school board is concerned, it is to be discontinued by a charter amendment that has been submitted to the voters of the city and approved.

It would be unjust, unfair and untruthful to say that all, or perhaps, the major portion of the acts committed or decisions arrived at by governmental instrumentalities in executive session are deleterious to the public welfare, or are inspired by ulterior design or backed by motives that are anything but conscientious and sincere.

Public officials as a rule are clean, honorable, upright citizens, who would purposely do no wrong;
but once in a while a man of whom that cannot be said manages somehow to gain public office—and the "executive session" is his refuge in the event that he wants to do something or to carry a point that he knows to be unpopular or against the public interest.

Many honorable and highly beneficial acts are committed by public officials and boards sequestered for the time being from the public eye.

But whenever a group of body of elected servants of the people locks the doors between it and the public while it deliberates upon public business that act per se invites suspicion and subjects its motives and purpose to question!

Only very rarely are circumstances such as to necessitate a star chamber session of a public body.

Men and women elected to public office are servants of the people; and the people have a right not only to know what they do, but to see how they do it, and if they want to, to watch the process by which it is done!

No honorable, conscientious, fearless public official will demand that he be permitted to wear a mask while transacting public business, and no board composed of men of that type will demand the privilege of retiring to a secret chamber to deliberate upon matters of public interest and concern.

Prohibition of secret sessions of the school board undoubtedly will make for better administration in the school system; and it should be welcomed by the members of that body as well as by the masses who are amenable to its official decisions.

It is a policy that might well be extended so as to include all other branches of the public service.

ACCEPT OR REJECT IT!

Henry Ford's recent implied appeal to congress to take some sort of definite action with reference to his Muscle Shoals development proposal will be approved in spirit by the masses of the people.

For months the Ford offer has been hanging fire in the house military affairs committee, where it was placed immediately following its submission to congress by Secretary of War Weeks.

The secretary of war had it in his possession for weeks before that, submitting it to congress early last spring—a day or two following the senate vote affirming Newberry's right to retain his toga.

Exhaustive hearings have been conducted to determine the real merits, or lack of merit, of the bid;
it has been compared from every conceivable angle with other bids submitted.

It has been "debated" interminably, taken a part and examined down to its minutest detail.

The committee, accompanied by a corps of experts in the various lines of industry upon which the offer has bearing, made a personal inspection of the Muscle Shoals project, its members acquiring all the first-hand information obtainable through actual observation and consultation on the ground.

One after another the bids of Mr. Ford's competitors for the lease have been found wanting and unacceptable.

That of Mr. Ford has been amended, revised, dissected and analyzed, bit by bit; but it has withstood the test of fire.

This feature and that has been criticized and objected to, in turn,
by the committee members hostile to the Detroit manufacturer; but each objection has either been met by a satisfactory concession on Ford's part, or argued "out of court."

The committee seems determined not to let Ford have the Muscle Shoals lease, but afraid to say so!

Knowing that the sentiment of the people is overwhelmingly in favor of acceptance of the Ford proposal, the committee seems to be afraid to submit it to the house even with its disapproval!

As a last resort, obviously in an effort to discourage Mr. Ford and hoping that he would withdraw his bid, the committee notified him that he must further amend his proposal in such a way as to exclude the Gorgas nitrate plant.

To that "ultimatum" Mr. Ford has replied that he "cannot consent to eliminate the Gorgas plant because it is necessary to the economical operation of the Muscle Shoals project."

"If," he said in his letter to Chairman Kahn, "my revised offer for Gorgas is rejected, then I must understand that the acceptance of my offer for Muscle Shoals as a whole and not in part is refused."

"And I further request," said Mr.
Ford—"that your committee send this final offer to the house so that its members may vote for acceptance or rejection."

"If congress votes acceptance of my offer we will get on the job at Muscle Shoals at once; but if congress rejects it that will be the beginning of a more determined effort on my part to save Muscle Shoals for the benefit of the public."

The duty of the committee is plain: either to approve or disapprove the offer as it now stands, and submit it to congress for final action!

The people are thoroughly tired of this interminable quibbling, procrastination and delay.
They want action at Muscle Shoals!

Furthermore, the vast majority of the people, especially those of the south and the farmers of the whole country, are hoping that Ford will be the one to direct that action.

But whoever gets the contract, the people want the award definitely made; and if nobody is to get it, and the project is to continue to lie dormant, or be developed by government initiative, they want to know it!

In other words, the public wants the matter settled one way or another.

The patience of the masses, who are vitally interested in this important development, has just reached the point of exhaustion.

"God save the king" has its good points, but what the world needs now is something in the nature of "God save the pieces."

Men no longer boast of how much they make. The tax-man might get them. Or a dry agent might get them.

"What will become of our young people?" wails a reformer. Oh, they'll grow old and worry about the young people.

HEALTH TALKS

HOT ON THE URIC ACID TRAIL.

This uric acid trail opened, as our new aged readers may recall, with the quite yet astounding assertion that a healthy adult has about 2 grains of pure, high-grade uric acid in his blood when he is in good fighting form. This is very regrettable of course. It places the healthy individual in a most unenviable position.
If he were entirely honest he ought to be all crippled up and have knobs and humps all over his uric acid racked body instead of being totally uninterested in what that mysterious old army surgeon found in India—pew in the Sudan?—anyhow, it was in a land of mystery.

Uric acid is derived from two sources in health. First, from various foods, which foods, however, are practically indispensable in the diet of a live human being; and second, from the normal metabolism or oxidation of the body tissues. If a healthy person excludes from his diet all food substances from which uric acid may possibly be derived, his blood still contains uric acid, and uric acid is still eliminated through the kidneys for as long as the experiment may be continued. A healthy adult on a so-called purin free diet (that is, a diet which contains no uric acid forming food materials) eliminates through the kidneys from three to ten grains of uric acid each day. I am mighty sorry about this. It tends to spoil the discovery of that "old army surgeon" in India or the Sudan. But let us not shed tears for the old fellow.
He'll get along all right—there's a victim of the rheumatism myth born every three minutes, at least.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
PERSPIRING FEET.
Please give a remedy through your column for bad smelling feet.
(G. J. K.)
Answer—Formaldehyde seems to be the best remedy. This is a powerful irritant and must be used with caution. The standard solution of formaldehyde called formalin is used.
About one ounce of this formalin should be diluted in a bottle with seven ounces of water, and the soles and the skin between the toes spoused over with this each alternate day, allowing the feet to dry before putting on stockings. Usually four or five such applications will overcome the annoyance for a considerable time.
The treatment may be repeated later if required. Persons whose feet sweat much should wear oxford (low shoes) and wool or wool and silk or heavy silk hose.

BREAST FEVER.
Kindly write an article on breast fever. My sister had it one week after the birth of her baby. She has been lanced three times and . . . (Chicago.)

Answer—Abscess, you mean. Due to uncleanliness. Unwarranted interference, neglect of asepsis (surgical cleanness) are the common predisposing causes of the infection which produces breast inflammation or abscess, and, of course, fever therefrom.
The "unwarranted interference," I regret to say, is still too frequently the contribution of nurses or other attendants in hospitals and in private practice.

A Boy Gone Wrong.
My son is nearly 6 feet tall and quite strong, though he is only 16 years old. He thinks he is a full grown man he may smoke cigarettes to excess. . . . (Mrs. D. P.)

Answer—When a youth takes to cigarettes he will hear close watching for there is certainly a moral deficiency asserting itself in his conduct.
A boy with character can and does resist the tobacco habit if his mother expects him to do so.

Mother Versus Daughter.
Mother and I have had some disputes as to whether it is injurious to bathe in the course of the period. I think not and am for continuing my customary tepid or warm baths, but my daughter fears this will bring on consumption. We both have great faith in you and will abide by your word, which in questions of hygiene, is law in our neighborhood. (M. S.)

Answer—The experience of thousands of well educated young women has proved that the regular use of tonic bathing may be continued uninterruptedly. Your mother's fear is wholly unfounded. The truth is that thousands of young women have learned they may even go in swimming whenever they wish without any ill effect.

THEN
When your dream of life is over and you hear the other shore
You may find yourself elected
To sing bass forevermore.

In your early days at school—
Even later as a rule—
You, like all of us, no doubt
Have been forty kinds of fool.

But when age begins to creep
And you miss a full night's sleep;
Then let loose your phylactic clapper.
It's amusing—and it's cheap!

When you've shuffled off the coil
What'll then reward your toil?
Why waste time in foolish questions?
Get the dope in a twinkling—
—CARL L. OSWALD,
613 Fifteenth St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

The Land of Make Believe
Drive sorrow from your hearts today.
Let gladness reign supreme!
And happy laughter fill the air,
For life is but a dream.

And to our Make Believe Land return.
Where all our dreams come true.
Unhappy bridges we will burn.
So worry can't come through.

A magic wand we wave and see
Our cares all blown away.
And life we thought distasteful
Is most beautiful today!

We love our happy Make Believe Land
Where you and I may roam.
By a fraction we quickly make
A palace of our home.

With Make Believe eyes we only see
The things we wish there.
And pity those who can not play.
The fairies are still here.

When all the world looks dark and blue
Remember our Make Believe Land
Where all our dreams are true.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE
New York, June 1.—Thoughts while strolling around New York: The park lakes shimmering with morning. The iron deer belt. Remodeled brick homes.
With croquet grounds. Acres of autumn Swift and soundless. Apple-like boys in pony drawn dogcarts. A forbid-clattering hansom. Well-washed blooms in tennis flannels. All steamed up. The society C. D. Gibson produces in ink. Discarded by delusions of grandeur.

There goes Ochs, the proprietor of The Times. Windows of Serres china and lapis lazuli. Lunchrooms. Fittings.
Tens. Bridge. A tangled cosmos. Wondered eggs. Shanley's cafe has been done over. Something epic—I don't know what about steaming coffee urns.

Intellectuals going to the coffee ute. Made of Bourbon. Now they serve synthetic gin cocktails.

Tasting like dog soap.
I shall be late for the theatre. I bought a big drug store to give him a Broadway entrance. There is a merry burrah. A fellow with a purple derby and a yellow tie. Try to picture that—while I devour a few hot sausages.

Radio has broadcast a lot of men into go. Jobs along Park Row. Among the highest salaried men on newspapers these days are the radio experts.
One electrical expert on an evening journal is receiving $22,000 a year—and the radio reporters—leg men—are getting from $100 to $125 a week.
Now that the supper clubs can not permit dancing after 2 o'clock they are offering special vaudeville acts to hold the crowd. The manager announces the last dance and tells with quivering voice of the municipal edict that is spoiling New York's night life.
Those who must dance away the lagging hours are rushing to the roof-houses after 2 o'clock, where the police regulations are not so strict.
Down near sun-drenched, swarming, grass-forsaken Tompkins square on the east side is an intellectual club founded by Russian workers—not the refugees or violent theorists—but earnest, newly-made citizens who wish to preserve something of a cherished heritage, the love of native books, music, folk stories and dancing. In the basement of the club is a Moscow restaurant, where they sit at tables sip-ping creamy mugs of brown kvass
—a sort of exotic cider. Every evening one may hear the balalaika playing Moussorgsky and Rimsky-Korsakov. There is a free library filled with books of Tolstoy, Pushkin, Turgeniev, Dostoevsky, Gorky, Chekhov, Kropot-kin, Gogol and Andreyev. The building which houses the club is decorated with bright allegories of life.
In the hallways are statues of Chali-apin, Lincoln, Andrew Carnegie and Washington. It is a colorful place as full indeed as Tompkins square, which is filled with a population from almost every foreign land.

THE PERISCOPE

During the beauty-sleep hour the early bird gets more goats than worms.
Jurists seem to be laboring under the delusion that this is Be-Kind-to-Criminals week.

You will observe that even the most ardent advocates of democracy are offended if the waiter isn't properly deferential.

All of the nations have their little faults, but none now has the nerve to claim that God is with it.

Some people think they are religious just because they ask God to baffle the detectives.

After talk about Germany going after business doubtless was occasioned by the fact that the mark is going where business has gone.

Every time Europe has an axe to grind, she tries to hammer that America doesn't love her any more.

A sucker is one who never out-grows the child-like faith that the general public will be permitted to share in a bonanza.

Our educational system is not yet perfect. In many instances studies interfere with the proper development of athletics.

That feeling comes to a male only twice: when a boy he is seen appearing in pants, and when as a man he first appears in golf togs.

(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution.)

fore the county commissioners, in person, heard the readers of the governor's letter and as far as I could so, I asked why an old widow should be compelled to pay $20 per acre on her farm lands—good, bad and indifferent. The answer was that the lands were placed as low as $12.50 per acre—also $15 per acre on land located on the Etowah river, which Tax Commissioner Fullbright, in a public hearing, declared should not be assessed less than $100 per acre—in the counties of Cherokee and Bartow.

Tax Commissioner Fullbright is mistaken about the origin of this strange and expensive law. He says it was only to equalize—and not to tax, as their duty—under the statute.

It is too well known in Georgia to be disputed, that Governor Clayton was the man behind it. His critics said he must fix a place for John Hart, a candidate for governor, and as Commissioner Fullbright had to be fixed with a place, also, we have the beginning and the progress of tax equalization up to date.

It was simply paralyzing to read the late reply of Senator Watson in regard to land values in the counties of McDuffie, Putnam, and others therein named.

I found the following figures in my copy of the 1921 Map of Georgia:
In 1921 lands averaged $6 per acre;
in 1921 Putnam lands averaged $0.94 per acre. In Bartow county we were degraded with low weevil, and those pyrrhic riding assessors taxed everybody at $20 per acre, and also $5 per thousand extra, in 1921, for local school tax.

It is well to state that I rented a two-acre crop land in the middle of lot 192 to the tax receiver. When we settled account in the fall of 1921 I had received a fraction over $26 for the cotton crop grown on 60 acres of my best land. There was a full understanding as to that particular farm. I returned it at $15 per acre in the spring, and I did not get enough to pay the $100 per acre to pay the assessment on lot 192.

When the legislature meets, Governor Clayton will propose to go to Atlanta and see the tax receiver. He will Commissioner Fullbright and myself examined on the tax digest of Bartow county early in this year, to the commissioner's tax collection and tax methods.

I can show where 640 acres of Etowah river land was assessed at $12.50 and $15 per acre; where 640 acres were assessed at $20, with $5 per thousand on every thousand valuation for schools. I can show where an elderly widow had to pay on land adjoining the Etowah river, and where nearly $23 per acre. I ventured to appeal to Tax Commissioner Full-bright for relief—in his office. Before he reached the door he asked me what I was going, and upon learning
I was going to the tax commissioner's office, he said: "Go along, my dear friend, and see the tax collector. He will tell you the leisure place in this capital. I'll wager you will find the stenographer doing fancy sewing, and the chief reading a newspaper.
There's nothing to it. It is as high a place without hard work as you will find in the state, or the United States."

Assessing my words in this instance, I can say without reserve, that there has never been such a machine manufactured by ambitious politicians as will compare with so-called tax equalization—downright tyranny and pernicious favoritism—in the county in which I live. It out-herods Herod for bare-faced animosity, and it has been a trick to turn, as a vote-getter for some of our assessors.

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

Next Week, "The Survivor,"
E. Phillips Oppenheim

The woman approached with the line. Stonor moved so as to bring himself in a line between Imbrie and the woman. Out of the tail of his eye he saw Clare at the door of her tent, anxiously watching. Stonor kept edging closer to the water and maneuvered to keep himself between Imbrie and the woman. Finally Stonor got Imbrie between him and the water. This was the moment he was waiting for. Plunging at Imbrie, he got under the gun barrel and bore the man back into the river. The gun was discharged harmlessly into the air. The beach sloped up sharply, and the force of his rush carried them both into three feet of water. They went under. Imbrie dropped his gun, and clung to Stonor with the desperate, instinctive grip of the non-swimmer. As they went under Stonor was aware of the woman rushing into the water after him with knife raised. He twisted his body so that Imbrie came uppermost and she was unable to strike. Stonor saw Clare running to the water's edge. "Get her gun!" he cried.

Clare swerved to where it stood leaning against the overturned dug-out. The woman turned back, but Clare secured the gun before she was out of the water, and dashed into the thick bushes with it. Meanwhile Stonor dragged the struggling Imbrie into deeper water. They lost their footing and went under again. The woman ran to the dug-out and pushed it into the water. Stonor, striking out as he could, carried his burden out beyond a man's depth. The current carried them slowly down. They were as much under the water as on top, but Stonor cannily held his breath, while Imbrie struggled uselessly. Stonor, with his knee against the other's chest, broke his stranglehold, and got him turned over on his back. Imbrie's struggles began to weaken. Meanwhile the dug-out was bearing down on them. Stonor waited until it came abreast and the woman swung her paddle to strike. Then letting go of Imbrie, he sank, and swimming under water, rose to the surface some yards distant. He saw that the woman had Imbrie by the hair. In this position it was impossible for her to wield her paddle, and the current was carrying her down. Stonor turned about and swam blithely back to the island. Clare, carrying the gun, came out of the bushes to meet him. Stonor found the gun that Imbrie had dropped in the water. From the beach they watched to see what the breed woman would do. "When she gets near the rapids she'll either have to let go Imbrie or be carried over," Stonor said grimly.

But the woman, with one hand clutching Imbrie's hair, contrived to wriggle out of the upper part of her dress. Out of this she pulled a slung passing it under the unconscious man's arms, and tying it to the thwart of the dug-out. She then paddled ashore and dragged the man over on the beach. There they saw her stand looking at him helplessly. Presently she loaded the inert body in the dug-out, and came paddling back towards the island. When she came near, Stonor said, raising the gun: "Come no closer till I give you leave."

She raised her hands. "I give up," she said apathetically. "I've got to have fire for him, blankets. Maybe he is dead."

"He's only half-dressed," said Stonor. "I can bring him to if you do what I tell you."

"What do you want?"

"Throw your ammunition belt ashore, then your knife, and the two knives that Imbrie carries in his belt."

She obeyed, landed, and permitted her hands to be bound. Stonor, then pulled the dug-out up on the stones, and turning it over rolled Imbrie on the bottom of it until he got most of the water out of him. Then, lying him on his back, after half an hour's unremitting work, he succeeded in inducing respiration. A little color returned to Imbrie's face, and in the end he opened his eyes and looked stupidly around him.

Suddenly out the darkness came with stunning effect a deep-throated hail: "Stonor, is that you?"

Two clumsy little pot-bellied collapsible boats grounded on the stones below their fire, as it seemed to their confused senses, they were immediately surrounded by a whole crowd of friendly faces. Stonor was aware, not of one red coat, but of three, and two natives besides. The rubicund face of his commanding officer, Major Egerton, swam before his eyes. Somehow or other he contrived to salute. "I have the honor to turn over two prisoners, sir. This man who claims to be Doctor Ernest Imbrie, and this woman, name unknown to me."

"Good work, sergeant!" Having returned his salute, the little major unbent and batted Stonor's hand.

"This is a surprise, sir, to see you," said the latter.

"I had just got to the Crossing on my rounds when your note came to Lambert. So I came right on with him. We had camped for the night, when we saw the reflection of your fire, and came down to investigate. Introduce me to the lady."

The little major bowed to Clare in his best style. He engaged her in conversation about the weather as if they had just met at a lawn fete. It was exactly what the shaken Clare needed. Meanwhile Stonor slipped aside to his friends. Lambert!" he cried, gripping his brother-sergeant's hand. "God knows your ugly phiz is a beautiful sight to my eyes! I knew I could depend on you! I knew it!"

Lambert silently clasped him on the back. Beyond Lambert Stonor caught sight of a gleaming smile on a dark face. "Tole!" he cried. "They brought you! How good it is to find old friends!"

CHAP. IX—The Hearing.

They moved to a better camping place on the mainland. Next morning they all gathered in the major's tent. The major, addressing her directly, he asked: "What is your name?"

"Annie Alexander."

"No, sir."

"What is your relation to the other prisoner here?"

"No relation, just a friend."

"Ah! Where do you come from?"

The woman hesitated. Imbrie murmured: "Winnipeg."

"Be silent!" cried the major. "Sergeant Lambert, take that man!"

It was done.

"How did you come in?"

"By way of Caribou lake and the crossings."

"What was your object in making this long journey alone?"

"Doctor Imbrie wrote to me to come and live with him. He had nobody to take care of his house."

"Where was the letter sent from?"

"Fort Enterprise."

"Sergeant Stonor, can you testify as to that?"

"I can testify that it is not true, sir. It was a matter of common knowledge at the post that Doctor Imbrie neither received nor sent any letters. Furthermore, the only word received from him all winter was in January."

The major turned to the woman. "According to that, you are telling an untruth about the letter," he said sternly. "Do you wish to change your statement?"

She suddenly shook her head. The major shrugged and went on. "Was Doctor Imbrie waiting for you at the Carajou Point?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you go to his place?"

Major Egerton waved his hand in Clare's direction. "Do you know this lady?"

"Yes, sir. It's Doctor Imbrie's wife."

"How do you know that?"

"I saw them married."

"Where was that?"

"I won't answer that at present."

The major turned to Stonor. "Will you question her?" he asked testily. "If I might hear the man's story first, sir, very well. Send for him."

Imbrie was brought in. At Stonor's request the woman was allowed to remain in the tent during his examination. After stating the usual formula as to his rights, the major started questioning him.

"Your name?"

"Ernest Imbrie, M. D."

"Father's name?"

"John Imbrie."

"You have Indian blood in your veins?"

"Yes, sir, my grandmother was an Indian. I never saw her."

"How long have you been in this district?"

"A year, sir."

"How did this woman come to join you?"

"I sent for her to keep my house for me."

"How did you get word to her?"

Imbrie blandly evaded the trap. "I sent a letter out privately to be passed along by the Indians—what they call morse-in telegraph."

"Very well. Now, when you started back with her, did she go home with you?"

"No, sir. She was taken sick at Swan lake and I had to leave her there."

Stonor signed to the major that he wished to ask a question, and the major bade him go ahead.

"Tell us exactly what was the matter with her, as a doctor, I mean."

"I decline to do so."

THE GUMPS—ANDY MAKES A KILLING

Stonor said: "I have established the point I wished to make, sir. He can't answer it."

Major Egerton proceeded: "Well, why didn't you wait for her until she got well?"

"I had to make a garden at home."

Stonor addressed the breed woman. "You say you are unmarried?"

"Yes."

"What are you doing with a wedding ring?"

"It's my mother's ring. She gave it to me when she died."

more conciliatory sir than he had yet shown: "If you please, sir, she is overcome by the trooper's horrible story. Will you let her go outside for a moment to recover herself?"

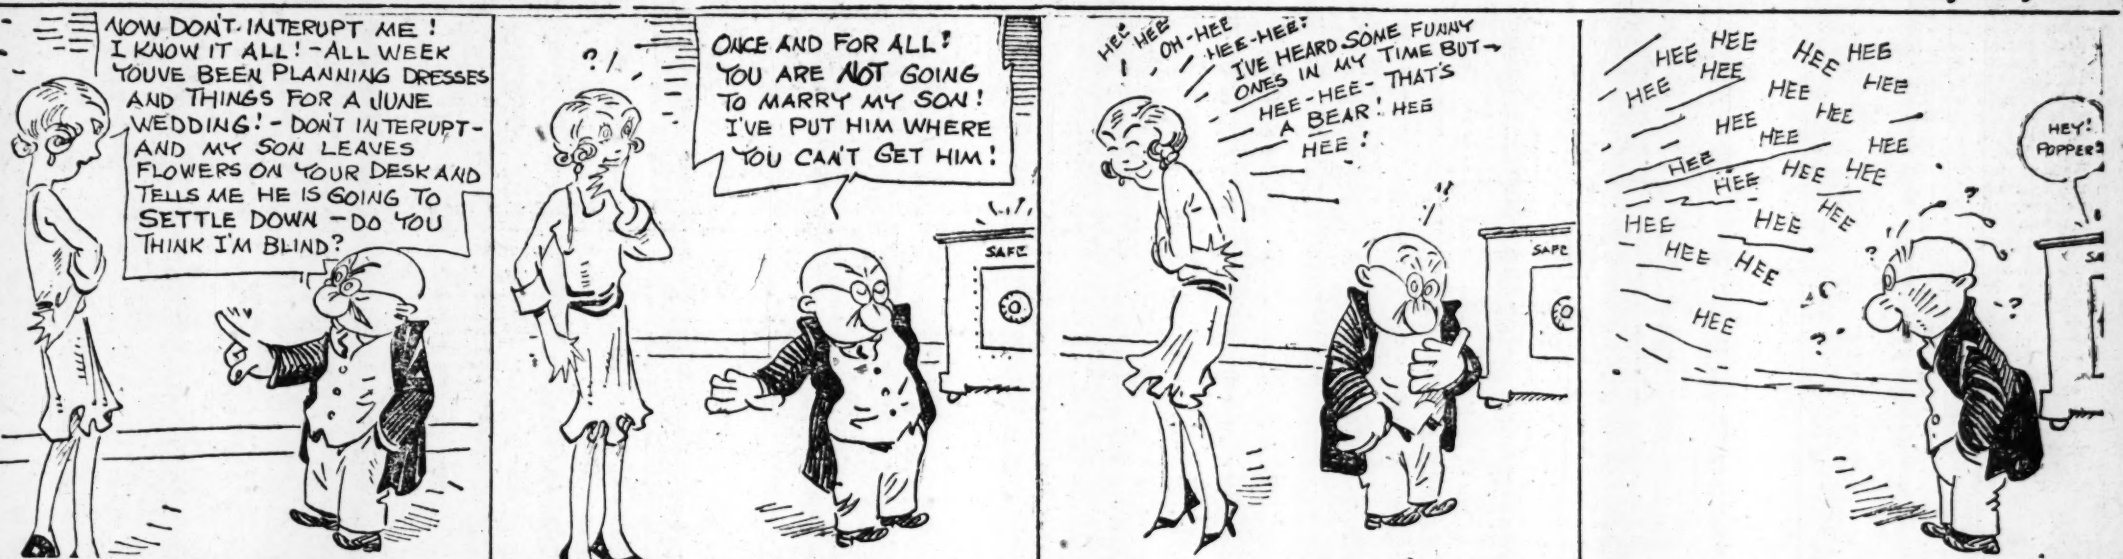

"Very well," said the major, "watch her, Lambert."

Stonor unclasped the chain around her neck. The two breeds guarded Imbrie to keep him from interfering. Stonor got the lock off at last, and opened it with his thumb nail. The woman suddenly ceased to struggle, and sagged in Lambert's arms. An exclamation escaped from Stonor, and he glanced sharply into Imbrie's face. Within the locket on one side was a tinted photograph of the heads of two little boys, oddly alike. On the other side was an inscription in neat Spencerian characters of twenty years before: "Ernest and William Imbrie, and a date."

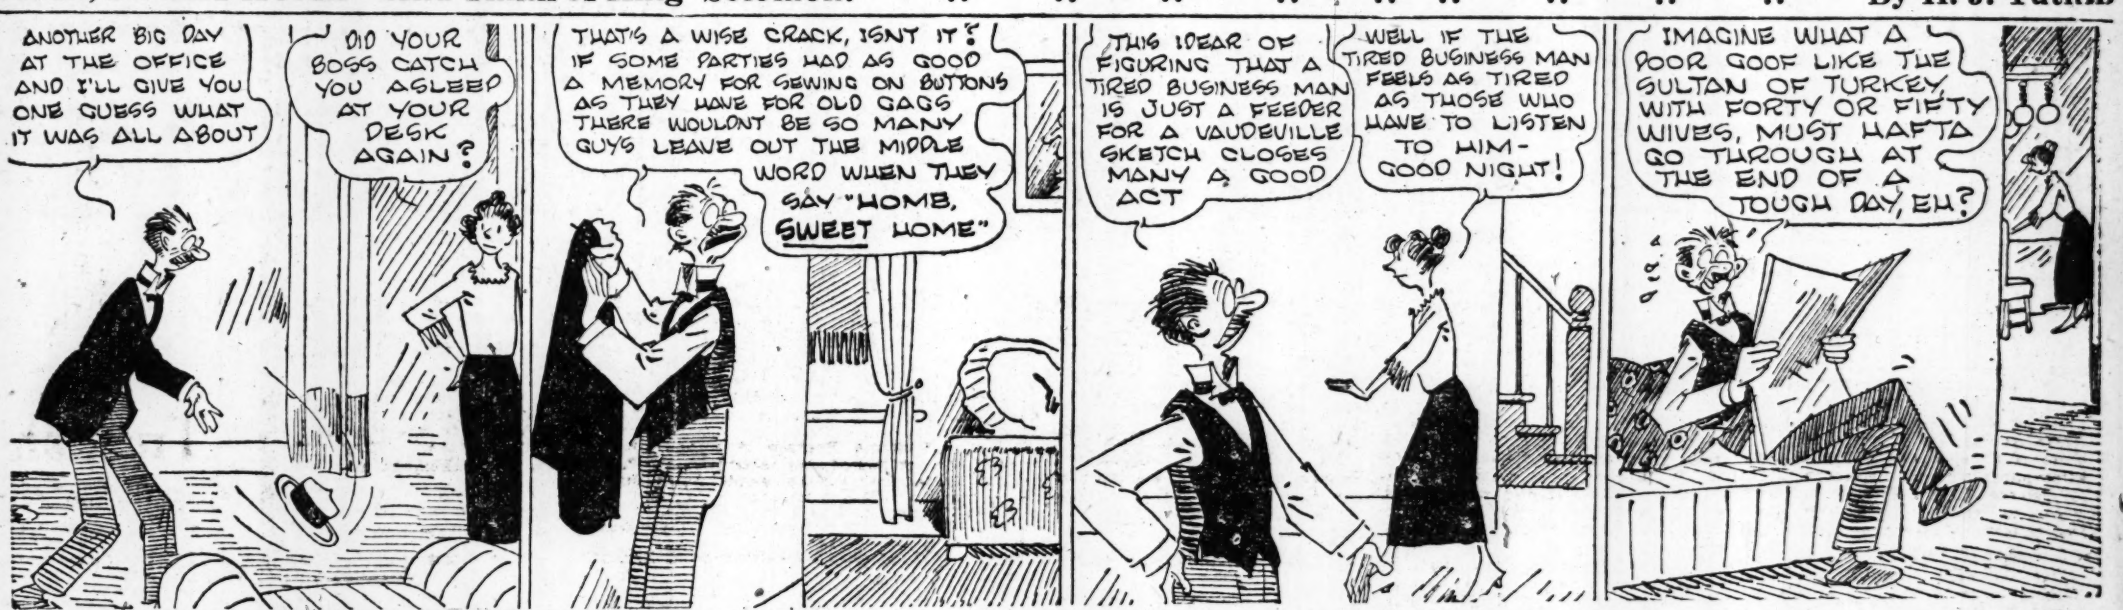

Stonor handed the locket over to the major without speaking. "Ha!" cried the latter. "So that is the explanation. There were two of them!"

Mrs. McCormack Re-Elected President of P.-T. A. Council

Mrs. Frank McCormack was re-elected president of the Council of Parent-Teacher associations, at the last quarterly meeting of the council held Thursday afternoon in Steinway hall. The other officers serving with the president will include Mrs. E. D. McDonald, of Tenth street, first vice president; Mrs. Hinton Hopkins, of Highland, second vice president; Mrs. Z. S. Cowan, of the executive committee; Mrs. J. E. Maguire, of Slaton, treasurer; and Mrs. Howard C. McCutcheon, of Fraser school, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Martin Chairman. Mrs. Robert Martin, from Spring Street school, acted as chairman of the nominating committee, and serving with her were Mrs. F. I. McDonald, Mrs. J. M. Ford, Mrs. D. M. Thierrell, and Mrs. Dan Goepper. Mrs. Charles Robertson, read the minutes of the last meeting, which was followed by the treasurer's report, read by Mrs. Z. V. Peterson. She announced a balance on hand of $3.81, after paying out 45 cents for cards, from a total of $4.26 in the treasury for June. Mrs. McCormack's resume of the year's work since her election as president showed that the council had figured in every civic interest in the city. The report of Mrs. Murdoch Walker showed that the executive board had held seven meetings during the year and had transacted routine business.

Brief Reports. A number of brief reports were made by the various presidents of the P.-T. clubs with Mrs. J. E. Maguire from Adair, stating that when she went into office last September, there were 43 members of the P.-T. club, and now the membership numbered 159. Mrs. R. L. Thompson, of Battle Hill, announced that she completed her second year as president and that when she assumed office, the membership totaled 13 members, while at the present time, the membership has increased 100 per cent.

Mrs. Murray Hubbard, president of the Boys' High P.-T. A., praised the opening of a luncheon which has been self-supporting, from which $200 has been voted to the athletic committee. The P.-T. A. co-operated with the Superintendents of Schools, W. A. Sutton and the principal of Boys' High in urging higher scholarship, the result being that 43 boys were on the honor roll for the closing exercises. Mrs. C. R. Fox, the newly elected president, was introduced by Mrs. Hubbard.

Mrs. Howell Dodd, president of Calhoun Street P.-T. A., praised Mrs. A. P. Tripod for the purchase of a two and one-half-acre lot for a new building. Crew street was represented by Mrs. Carl Dick, the president, who stated that the association had handled over $700 and had made many gifts to charity.

Mrs. Z. V. Peterson spoke of the continued increase in attendance of mothers in her association and told of the appropriation she had secured from council for a school library. A profit of $400 was made during the scholastic year on the luncheon, and there is a balance of $125 on hand, after purchasing the necessary things for her school. Mrs. Peterson has been elected to serve for the fourth year as president of her association.

Mrs. McCutcheon Talks. Mrs. Howard McCutcheon, from Fraser, reported that when she assumed office there were 17 mothers enrolled, and at the reception given at her home recently, there was a representation of 180 mothers, an increase of 100 per cent. Mrs. David Wise, from Formwalt, reported that her club owned over $1,000 worth of new furniture bought by the P.-T. A. which demonstrated splendid spirit. Mrs. Dan Goepper, of Georgia avenue, announced that her association made no debts and that free lunches had been given during the scholastic year. A $305 stereopticon machine has been paid for by the Greenwood association of which Mrs. Charles A. Morris is president, and this club is free from debt.

Bouchier-Schaeffer Wedding Is Solemnized at Home

The marriage of Miss Rachael Smith Bouchier, and Edwin Frank Schaeffer was a beautiful event of Thursday evening at 6 o'clock, taking place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Shadie Townsend Bouchier, on Peachtree street. Dr. C. J. Harrell, of the First Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage of relations and friends.

Elaborate Decorations. The house was elaborately decorated with palms, ferns and a profusion of cut flowers. An improvised altar was formed of stately palms, a background for two large floor baskets of Easter lilies and cathedral candelabra holding white lighted tapers. A program of appropriate music was rendered, preceding the ceremony, by Miss Mabel Whitney, accompanied by an orchestra.

The bride and groom were the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march. The little ribbon bearers were Miss Louise Wray Cozart, of Columbia, S. C., and Eugene Armstrong, of Greenville, S. C., who were first to enter, carrying the ribbons, to form a circle through which the bride party passed. Little Miss Cozart wore a dainty frock of green chiffon, and Master Armstrong wore a white satin suit. The bridesmaids, Misses Josephine Havis and Eleanor Welborn, entered next wearing attractive gowns of white lace overdraperies. The waist was green tulle with a large bow at the back. They wore large leghorn flower trimmed hats and their flowers were corsages of sweet peas. Mrs. M. C. Kropa, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and was lovely in a gown of pink tulle with lace overdraperies. The waist was green tulle with a large bow at the back. ### Higgs-Woodard Wedding Is Beautiful Home Event

A beautiful home wedding of interest to a host of friends was that of Miss Frances Sherwood Higgs and Charles Floyd Woodard, which was solemnized Thursday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Higgs, in Ansley Park. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. W. Menninger, pastor of All Saints' Episcopal church.

Stately palms, ferns, sweet peas, roses and other garden flowers were effectively arranged as decorations in the reception rooms. In the living room an improvised altar of palms and ferns was formed, the center being graced by a tall seven-branched candelabra holding white burning tapers. On either side were pedestals filled with white roses. William Arnau, organist at All Saints' church, played the wedding march, and preceding the ceremony violin selections were rendered by David Love.

Bridal Party. The bridesmaids were Misses Elizabeth Halstead, of Norfolk, Va.; Dorothy Kellam, Mary Bell, Sujette Holmes. Their gowns were fashioned alike of green and pink organdy trimmed with tulle sashes and dainty bows of silver ribbon. They carried silver hats filled with roses, sweet peas and snapdragons.

Miss Ann Clinton Davidson, of New York, was maid of honor, and wore a beautiful frock of orchid organdy, with trimmings of silver ribbon. Hg flowers were roses, sweet peas and snapdragons arranged in a hat of silver lace.

The little ribbon bearers were Misses Louise King, Callender, Welner, Sarah Kenan, Betty Hambricht. They wore dainty handmaiden organdy frocks.

The bride entered with her father, Sherwood Higgs, who gave her in marriage, and was radiant in her wedding gown of white canteen crepe, hand embroidered and trimmed in rose point lace. The tulle veil was fastened to her hair by a bandeau of orange blossoms and fell in graceful folds to form the train. She carried a bouquet of orchids, showered with valley lilies.

Mr. Woodard and his bride left during the evening for a wedding trip. The bride wore a smart frock of French blue serge combined with gray, with hat to match.

Mrs. Woodard is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Higgs and the late Dr. and Mrs. William J. Hawkins, of Raleigh, N. C. She is related both on her maternal and paternal sides to prominent North Carolina and Virginia families. She is a graduate of Washington seminary and St. Mary's school, in Raleigh, N. C.

Mr. Woodard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Woodard, of North Carolina. He is a graduate of Trinity college and a member of the Delta Sigma Phi and Xi Psi fraternities.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodard will spend the summer in the mountains of western North Carolina, and will make their home next fall in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lamar and Miss Sarah Lamar, of Athens, Ga.; Miss Ann Clinton Davidson, of New York city; Miss Elizabeth Halstead, of Norfolk, Va.; Mr. J. M. Woodard, of Nashville, Tenn.

A GENERAL EXAMINATION

You should be your hardest critic. One reason is that it is an excellent way to forestall criticism. Another reason is that you should be the fairest judge of yourself since you know your self so well that you should be conscious of all your defects.

It is easier to criticize yourself physically than mentally because you can hold a mirror up to yourself and find the flaws in your complexion. There is no such simple way to find the flaws in your character.

Someone has said that a woman should be her own worst enemy. She should, in fact, be a whole host of enemies. She should see all the things about herself that any one else could possibly criticize. She should see where her hair lacks beauty so that she can find the way to improve it. She should see the flaws in her complexion, the prominent pores, the muddy color, the wrinkles that are appearing more and more frequently. She should see where her mouth is bad and study to improve its expression.

She should criticize the appearance of her neck, remembering that most women have very ugly necks. She should stand before a full length mirror and look critically to see whether she holds her chest and shoulders well, whether her arms are graceful, her figure slim and elastic, her waist fat and her hips too broad. She should walk up and down before the mirror to see how she looks in motion, for few women have a graceful gait. She should even sit before the mirror to study her characteristic attitudes.

None of this is vanity, in fact if the woman is really critical that is the opposite of vanity.

Laura May—I shall be glad to mail you the formula for the "Extra Hair Shampoo" on receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

Eleanor—Bobbed hair has remained in style in spite of what some people think about it, and there does not appear to be any likelihood of its going out for some time. The reason for this is its convenience, also the fact that it is so very becoming to certain types of young women.

H. C. B.—If you scrub the body with a bath brush, using bathing soap, it will make your skin smooth. Either rock salt or sea salt in the sponge bath will also do this. A cold cream made from oils and beeswax will not cause hair to grow on the face. The

A Mirror Cleanser.

A soft cloth dipped in spirits of camphor is effective in cleaning a greasy mirror.

Roast Lamb.

Lamb should be basted constantly while roasting if you would obtain the best flavor from it.

A Flower Hint.

Flowers cut in the morning will last much longer than those cut later in the day when the sun is shining on them.

To Remove Basting Threads.

Cut the basting threads every few inches before pulling them out, and there will be no danger of leaving holes in the material.

A Wallpaper Hint.

Should you decide to do some of your own wall-papering, lay the rolls of paper on the basement floor for a few days before using. It will absorb enough moisture to make it less brittle and will be much easier applied.

When Preserving.

Try using a gray boat to fill the jars and tumblers with jelly and preserves. It is easily dipped into the hot kettle of fruit by means of the handle and the long spout will fit into almost any size jellytumbler and thus prevent spilling.

Medals Offered At East Atlanta By P.-T. Clubs

Every seventh grade pupil attending the East Atlanta school was promoted at the graduating exercises held Thursday morning.

The Parent-Teacher association offered two medals for the boy and girl making the highest mark in oratory, and the winners were Quigg Hollingsworth and Christine Hunt. Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, president of the P.-T. A., offered a cash prize of $2, as a second oratorical prize, which was won by Louis Pittman, and Sallie Stovall.

The board of education has voted a cafeteria to East Atlanta school, which will be installed when the school opens in September.

Lynn Johnston, an old acquaintance, whom she meets on the train. Getting off the train for a bit of exercise, Diana and Johnston are left behind at a small New Mexican town.

After discovering that there is no means of leaving the town that night, they are met by a strange byway.

The rider, who turns out to be Pedro Dominguez, invites them to his ranch and against Johnston's wishes, Diana accepts.

CHAPTER XXIX.

An Oasis.

The little cavalcade composed of Diana atop the pony, the handsome Spaniard at her left stirrup, and the sulky, trucking Johnston topped a long, rugged trail that had stretched its unbroken length over miles of shimmering sand and faced a cuplike depression where the buff walls of a house rose from a great clump of date palms.

"My hacienda," said the Spaniard with a graceful wave of his hand.

"You have a wife—and family, senior?" inquired Diana, as her eyes took in the beauty of the sequestered spot.

He shook his head smilingly, his white teeth gleaming under the upturned mustache.

"But I have servants who will make the senora comfortable for the night."

"We'll be making off after the sun goes down and it stops being so comfortable," put in Johnston hastily.

"Some good looking place you've got there," he added, in a belated effort at graciousness.

The Spaniard shrugged.

"It is poor—too poor for the accommodation of the senora, who thus honors my abode."

"You had reached the shelter of the palms. The scene of flowers came to them and the cooling splash of water."

Diana grew a grateful breath.

"How charming!" she exclaimed, as their host assisted her from the horse which a Mexican boy ran out to hold.

"This may, senora," the Spaniard led the way toward a quaint barred gateway opening into a patio.

"Just a moment."

Johnston stepped forward and detained Diana with a hand on her arm.

"Don't be so darned trustful. We don't know who this is. I feel responsible to your husband for you and I'd rather not have you out of my sight."

Diana smiled a bit scornfully.

"Do you think you would be much of a match for the matter of a ranch? I fancy he has a good many at his command, cowboys, or peons, or whatever they call them."

He flushed under the dusky red that the sun had brought to his face and neck.

"I may not be much good in a scrap, but at least he'll watch his step as long as he thinks you're my wife."

"Why ever did you tell him such an absurd thing?" Diana demanded indignantly. "It makes me furious."

He spread out his hands with a gesture of despair.

"Oh, what's the use of trying to make you see? You know as well as I do that it looks decently queer for my rambling around this God-forsaken country if we are not married or brother and sister or something."

"Ridiculous!" scoffed Diana. "You're positively medieval!"

And she marched away to join the politely waiting Spaniard.

It seemed to her that she had stepped into some old Spanish story of the Mission country when she saw the cool patio with its encircling palms and the fountain playing in the center. Rooms with long casement windows opened upon the patio and into one of these her host ushered her. A Mexican girl glided in noiselessly after his departure and in half an hour Diana was bathed and resting between cool sheets that held some pleasing fragrance.

She slept for several hours and woke marvelously refreshed.

Unanswered Questions.

Stretching her arms above her head, she yawned luxuriously and lay there in the darkness recalling the curious set of circumstances that had brought her into this adventure.

She thought of Alex with something resembling a giggle.

Dear, conventional Alex!

She wondered what he was doing. Would he be trying frantically to get in touch with the desolate little station where she and Lynn Johnston had their unfortunate experience of getting left behind the limited, or would be raging up and down the corridor on the car, cursing Johnston and herself, or still again, would he philosophically be partaking of a good dinner in the dining car and restoring to Johnston's ingenuity to restore her to him?

She rather fancied that he would be doing a little bit of all three.

What an adventure! And with a handsome host! With the single exception of Stephen Dale, she could not remember ever having seen such an attractive person.

The bed was soft too and the linen delightful and the splash of the fountain in the patio was a soothing lullaby.

She hoped that Johnston could be persuaded to remain for the night instead of dashing off across the desert in a quickback behind a corner of mustangs to a wretched little frontier town hotel.

Of course, it was a bit unconventional being in the house of a handsome bachelor to whom she hadn't even been introduced, and unchaperoned at that, but going off alone with Johnston was almost as improper, even if he had once been vouched for by Marjorie.

There was a slight noise in the corridor outside her room and the little Mexican girl came in with a tall candle.

She bore a note written in a flashing hand which she mutely offered Diana.

"From your master?" enquired Diana.

But the girl only shook her head and said something in Spanish which Diana could not understand.

Diana read the note.

"Senora! Will you honor me with your company at dinner. Ask for everything you require for your toilet and it will be supplied."

"Pedro Dominguez."

P. S.—Your husband is indisposed and will not favor us with his presence."

Y. W. C. A. Club To Give Playlet Tonight.

An interesting occasion of this evening will be the appearance of the "Be Square" club of the Y. W. C. A. Home, 62 West Baker street, in a comedy, "Young Dr. Devine," at 8 o'clock, at the Central Congregational church, Carnegie way. The playlet will be followed by a program of music in which the home's talented musicians will take part. Admission will be 15 cents. The public is invited.

Later they may take up one of the new shapes of straw which has an immense brim to shade the face, a crown, which is wide and somewhat high, dotted with clumps of colored velvet ribbon set about the head like flowers. Even children will not escape the fashion for brightly tinted ribbons, which may tire of the fashion sooner than it did dead black, but while it lasts it behaves like an epidemic. The sailor hats worn by the young women have these clumps of three velvet colors at each side as an offset to the rainbow band which began the season. The effect is better, less formal, therefore more gracious.

So far as the season has gone, few mothers have induced their children to wear black hats for warm weather, but there is no end of the dark blue ones. The sketch shows one. It is large of crown and brim, both cut in sectional pieces, the crown resembling a melon. The fabric is taffeta, the color dark blue, the ribbon, rose. And in the ribbon lies the real touch of gaiety. It is copied from the prevailing peasant fashions taken from the Slav countries, where all the hats, sober of frivolous, carry loops and ends of bright ribbon hanging down one side. They are usually red.

They adopt a bit of pleasant Russian now and then, for the gaiety of it pleases their nursery taste. But their liking for big crowned hats with bobbing ribbons hanging from the middle is apparent everywhere one sees children, smartly dressed.

These Women Are Preparing For Federated Clubs Convention

BY CENTRAL PRESS.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—(Special.)—The largest gathering of clubwomen in the 32 years of the General Federation of Women's Clubs' existence, is expected at Chautauqua, New York, June 20, to 30, for the 16th annual convention of the federation. At least 1,500 delegates are expected to represent the 2,000,000 members of the federation.

The "Arms Conference and Afterwards" is to be the topic of the address of Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president of the general federation, a member of the advisory committee of the Washington conference. Mrs. Winter is conceded to be one of the nation's leading women authorities on international relations. Since the face of the world hangs on international relations, this topic is to be leading one at the gathering of women from all sections of the world.

The program will be divided in order to include every branch of the work of the federation which comes under these heads: American citizenship, applied education, fine arts, public welfare, legislation, press and publicity.

A great part of the time will be given over to American citizenship and education. Mrs. John D. Sherman, chairman of the department of education will give the reports of the work of her department. Several additional speakers have been invited to give talks on this subject.

Mrs. W. S. Jennings, first vice president of the general federation, and candidate for re-election, will give an address as will Mrs. Florence C. Floore, of Texas, who is nominated for the office of treasurer to succeed Mrs. B. B. Clark, of Iowa. Another woman who will be prominent at the convention is Mrs. Leslie Stringfellow Read, national chairman of press and publicity. Mrs. Read is the youngest woman ever to hold a national office in the federation.

A new challenge to women's world-wide responsibility will be sounded by Frank P. Garvan, president of the chemical foundation. He will speak on the program of applied education. Other speakers of note from the full and varied programs which is far too long to record are: Raymond Robins, of "The Outlawry of War"; Dr. George Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Institute, who will talk on "Women and Public Health"; Bishop Clinton S. Quinn, of Texas, who will speak on the American citizenship program on "Citizenship Plus"; Will Hays is announced to talk on "Upbuilding the Nation's Life Through Motion Pictures"; Dr. Daisy Robinson, of the United States Public Health Service sent by the government will lead a discussion on social hygiene.

An informal reception followed the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with an imported lace cloth and held in the center a large white wedding cake, embellished in white roses and lilies and holding their wedding symbols. Pink tapers burned in silver holders and silver compotes held pink roses.

Serving punch were Miss Rebecca deLoach, of Camden, S. C., and Mrs. Pittman Sutton. The punch bowl rested on a stand of beautiful white and white summer blossoms.

Miss Katherine Wylie, of Lancaster, S. C., was in charge of the bride's book. Mrs. Joseph Sherrard Kennedy, mother of the bride, wore a handsome afternoon gown of black lace, and a corsage of pink roses and lilies.

Mrs. R. N. R. Bardwell, mother of the groom, was dressed in black silk lace, combined with black chiffon. Her corsage was of Ophelia roses.

Mrs. G. H. Estes, of Birmingham, Ala., the grandmother of the groom, wore a beautiful gown of black chiffon with touches of exquisite lace.

Her flowers were a corsage of Parnassia.

Mrs. Bardwell, as Miss Kennedy, was a popular member of the young set of society, having attended school at Salem college, Winston-Salem, N. C., where she was a member of the Theta Delta Pi sorority, later completing her education at Agnes Scott college.

Mr. Bardwell is a graduate of the 1921 class of Georgia Tech and is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. He served two years in France with the aviation corps during the world war.

Mr. Bardwell is at present connected with the Underwriters Salvage company.

Honoring Miss Cooper. In compliment to Miss Elizabeth Cooper, a popular member of Miss Katherine Raine's house party, Mrs. Sherrard Kennedy entertained at luncheon Thursday at her home on Peachtree street.

Sharing honors with Miss Cooper were the other members of Miss Raine's house party, who are Miss Martha Everett and Miss Katherine Morris, of Henderson, N. C., and Miss Helen Chamberlain, of Kingston, N. C.

A large basket filled with bright garden flowers adorned the center of the luncheon table. Silver candlesticks held pink unshaded tapers, and the place cards were hand-painted summer girls.

Covers were placed for Miss Cooper, Miss Raine, Miss Everett, Miss Morris, Miss Chamberlain, Miss Callie Orme, Miss Evelyn Jackson and Mrs. Bryan.

After dinner the guests attended the performance at the Howard theater.

The guest list included ten classmates of Mr. Freeman.

But we never see it exemplified more attractively than in the person of a splendidly healthy woman. How does nature paint this health? Why, in the rosy cheeks, the transparent skin, the smooth red lips of such a woman. And she molds it in firm flesh and rounded contours. The ailing woman is deficient in natural coloring, and she does not even appear to advantage in clothes that would set off her more attractive sister. Many women who long for glowing health find that they, too, can have these charms if they will give a trial to that remedy which brings strength to frail women—Lizide E. Public cordially invited. Ladies Aid serves a delicious home cooked dinner daily.

The Ladies Aid of St. Phillip's cathedral will give an old-fashion chicken dinner at their lunch room, 16 Washington street, Friday, June 2, from 12 to 2:30.

Menu: Baked chicken, brown dressing, cream gravy, combination salad, hot biscuit, tea or coffee, choice of caramel, Spanish, gold cake or silver cake. Dinner with dessert 25 cents.

Miss Katherine Haverly plans to entertain on Thursday, June 8, and many other parties have been planned for Miss Candler and her guests.

Miss Lucy Candler has as her guests at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Asa G. Candler, Jr., in Druid Hills, Miss Frances Wilson, of East Orange, N. J., and Miss Marie Smith, of Barre, Vt.

Miss Candler entertained at dinner for her guests on Wednesday, inviting a group of the college set in for dancing afterward.

Mrs. Lynn Frederick Howard will give a luncheon today at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Candler, Doobie, in Oakdale road, in compliment to these visitors.

Miss Kennedy Weds Mr. Bardwell At Home Ceremony

Centering the interest of a wide circle of friends was the beautiful wedding on Thursday afternoon of Miss Frances Pratt Kennedy to Ralph Newton Ransom Bardwell, Jr., which was solemnized at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sherrard Kennedy, in Decatur.

Rev. Daniel McGeehy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Decatur, officiated.

The lower floor of the house was thrown into one and artistically decorated with masses of bright summer flowers, garlands of southern hollyhocks, suspended from the mantels, walls and chandeliers, made an effective background for the variety of colors prevailing in the flowers.

An altar of palms, interspersed with white pedestal baskets of Easter lilies, the handles tied with fluffy white tulle, was formed in the sun parlor. Lighted candles in cathedral candelabras added to the attractiveness of the scene.

A string orchestra rendered a ceremony and played "I Love You Truly" during the ceremony.

Bridal Attendants. Miss Nancy Kennedy, who was her sister's maid of honor, was beautifully gowned in green organdie with trimmings of French flowers in pastel shades.

The bridesmaids were Misses Mary Bardwell, Marie Pierce, Marion Stone and Harriet Mack. Mrs. Owen Fields, of Bainbridge, was matron of honor.

They wore lovely costumes of pink organdie, fashioned with ruffled skirts and sleeves, and the fashionable batteau neckline. Carried Marie Antoinette baskets filled with a variety of summer flowers in the pastel shades. The handles of the baskets were tied with pink tulle.

George Bardwell was his brother's best man.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was exceedingly lovely in her wedding gown of white chiffon embroidered in seed pearls, Chiffon roses and rare old lace adorned the bodice and finished the neck line. The veil of tulle was caught to her hair with a coronet of pearls and orange blossoms and formed a train which was caught at intervals with tiny sprays of orange blossoms.

The bride's flowers were a sheaf of bride's roses and valley lilies and her only ornament was a pearl necklace which once belonged to her paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Robert Kennedy.

Informal Reception. An informal reception followed the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with an imported lace cloth and held in the center a large white wedding cake, embellished in white roses and lilies and holding their wedding symbols.

Things for Boys to Make.

Turning Lathe: Head Stock, Tool Rest, Tail Stock.

Materials needed: Boards from boxes, two friction top can lids, two long bolts with nuts and washers as shown in "F2" and "H2"; galvanized sheet metal for binding "G1"; twelve small split rivets. Sewing machine belt for belt.

"B" shows the belt wheel made of can lids riveted together (may also be made of wallboard); "F1" the wheel with the sides braced with wood strips surrounding the binding nut. Nut forces the long bolt (spindle) to turn. "F2" is the long head stock bolt (spindle), showing nuts, sleeves, washers. The end is filed flat and notched. It should turn in the two sleeves, "F3" is a flat view of end support of head stock; "G" tool rest; "G1" and "H" are adjustable right and left in long slots in table top. "H1" shows another view of the tail stock base; "H2" bolt which is filed to point in various parts of the work turns. Tail stock is set to the work and tightened. Length of bolts for clamping "F" "G" and "H" the table or box depends on thickness of wood used in various parts. Bolts at "H" should have two nuts so as to bind and lock tightly. Tomorrow tool drawer, etc.

Miss Smith, Hostess At East Lake Club.

A pretty compliment to Miss Margaret Maddox, a bride-elect, was Miss Louise Smith's bride-tea on Thursday afternoon at the East Lake Country club.

The interesting game was played in the sun parlor and tea was served from a beautifully appointed table placed in the drawing room of the club. A silver basket of pink sweet peas graced the center of the table, and the guests' places were marked with bags of rice decorated with bridal insignia.

Miss Smith was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. George T. Smith.

Miss Smith was gowned in blue embroidered voile, with hat to match.

Miss Cassels Honored At Bridge Party.

Miss Martha Louise Cassels, a charming June bride-elect, was honored on Thursday afternoon at the bridge party at which Mrs. Boykin Pennington was hostess at her home on Lombardy way.

The tables were placed in the sun parlor, where effective decorations of nasturtiums were used. Sweet peas and pink peonies adorned the living room and other apartments when the guests were received.

The top score prize was a hand-painted perfume bottle and the consolation was a box of hand made handkerchiefs. Miss Cassels was presented with a novelty apron.

Mrs. Pennington was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. S. S. Dudley, and her sister, Miss Arabelle Dudley.

Commercial Seniors To Have Pictures Made.

The Commercial High school seniors who graduated May 31, will please meet Friday morning at 9 o'clock at the City Auditorium, if it is not raining, to have their class photograph taken. If it is not raining and only cloudy, they will meet at the state capitol at 9 o'clock. Everyone is requested to be on time at either place according to the weather and to bring diplomas and flowers.

Atlanta Teachers Will Be Guests Of Woman's Club

The reception on Saturday will be the public school teachers of Atlanta to a reception given in their honor at the clubhouse on Saturday afternoon, June 3, from 4 to 5:30 o'clock. The reception will be in the form of a garden party if the weather is clear, otherwise the reception will be held inside the clubhouse.

The reception on Saturday will be the fourth annual reception to Atlanta public school teachers, and is the medium by which the club expresses its high regard for the splendid personnel of the schools. The reception is under the direction of the child welfare division of the public welfare department, and the reception committee will be composed of Mrs. R. M. Boykin and the officers of the club, the members of the executive board, Mrs. Harry Goodhart, chairman of the public welfare department; Mrs. C. Spurgeon King, who will be chairman of the child welfare division in the coming year, and the members of her committee; Mrs. W. F. Trenary and the members of her committee; Mrs. Alice Taylor and the members of her committee; Mrs. T. R. Harmon, Mrs. C. K. Ayer and Mrs. G. A. Jossey. Music will be rendered by the Mueller orchestra and refreshments will be served.

Bridge-Shower For Miss Houston.

Miss Mary Will Montgomery was hostess on Wednesday at a bridge-shower at her home on Sycamore street in Decatur in honor of Miss Mary Houston, a bride-elect of June 10.

Sweetpeas were the flowers used in decoration throughout the house. The lace-covered tea table had a central adornment of a mound of the same flowers in the pastel shades. A beautifully decorated umbrella, suspended from the ceiling and showered with sweetpeas, held a miscellaneous collection of gifts, which were showered on the bride-elect.

The bridge prizes were a pair of silk hose and a deck of cards.

Twenty-four guests were invited to meet Miss Houston.

W. M. S. Social At Baptist Church.

The W. M. S. of the Third Baptist church gave a social in the church on Wednesday afternoon. An interesting feature was the guessing contest under the direction of Mrs. C. M. Ogles, in which the prizes were awarded Mrs. J. T. Irby and Mrs. T. H. English.

Those present were Mrs. Byron Benson, Mrs. H. C. Newton, Mrs. L. O. Lamer, Mrs. T. H. English, Mrs. J. G. Morris, Mrs. A. E. Simpson, Mrs. C. A. Harwell, Mrs. O. D. Andrews, Mrs. W. R. Smith, Mrs. H. Roach, Mrs. R. R. Rav. Mrs. H. L. Macchate, Mrs. O. H. Erdman, Mrs. C. L. Peacock, Mrs. J. F. Irby, and Mrs. J. W. Harwell.

Military Dance Is Called Off.

This dance which was to have been given by company M of the Georgia Tech R. O. C. on June 3 has been called off.

WHAT'S WHAT

By Helen Deale

It is the kindly custom in certain districts of the Old South and the Far West to give "au revoir" parties and "farewell courtesies" teas to friends who are about to travel to foreign lands, or to remove to another state. This is a pleasant modern way of offering the "stirrup-cup" to prospective travelers who are on the eve of leaving us, "it may be for years, and it may be forever."

An afternoon tea is the easiest and most enjoyable way of conducting the "farewell courtesy." The mother and her daughter receive the callers; refreshments are served from a side table, and a fried is asked to pour tea, which is handed about by young girls or by men, if they are present, as they are sure to be if the tea is given Saturday or Sunday afternoon. When callers begin to leave, the hostess and the guests of honor reach the door to receive the farewell wishes of the other guests.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WOULD YOU BE SATISFIED?

There are many young people who seem to think that if they see the old folks of the family have warm rooms, enough to eat, and clothes to cover themselves, they have done their duty toward them nobly.

Would they be satisfied with warm rooms, enough to eat and clothes to cover themselves with?

Was anyone ever satisfied with the satisfaction of these primary wants, since the cave man days when it was so difficult to satisfy them that man's ambitions did not go beyond?

Thankful But Not Happy. It is a fact that young people often seem to be affronted by when they become aware of it, but it is a fact just the same. Older folks want pleasure, they want attention, they want a chance to talk about their hobbies, they want to feel useful, they want sometimes to feel important. And when they are denied all these things and told to be thankful because they have a roof to cover them and food to eat and a fire to warm them, they may be thankful but they will not be happy.

Just a few days ago I heard a woman complaining because her mother who is a shut-in beats against the bars of her captivity. "She has everything done for her," said the daughter, "and yet she isn't happy. I don't understand it." If anyone in the world should understand it that daughter is the one for her herself has had painful experience in being ill and she was very far from being contented or happy herself although she had every care and comfort and luxury that money could buy.

A Gymnasium Suit.

Another woman once told me that her mother was the most unreasonable thing, she (the mother) was always wanting to do things for her that she didn't want done. For instance, she wanted to make her little grand-daughter that was ridiculous. I told mother that was ridiculous. I could buy one almost as cheap and it would be better tailored." The grandmother in this case is an extraordinarily clever woman and would certainly have made a suit that could not have been told from a tailor-made one. And to have her do it would have given her that sense of being useful that means so tremendously much to the older folks. The daughter would certainly not see her mother lack for any physical comfort and yet she needlessly snatched away from her this spiritual comfort.

Mr. Sutton Addresses Calhoun School.

Superintendent of Schools Willis A. Sutton delivered the graduation address and diplomas at the commencement exercises Thursday at Calhoun school, this address the outstanding feature of an interesting program.

There was a large attendance of the parents of the children.

The program was as follows: The Lord's prayer.

RESULTS IN MAJORS THUR.

The leaders in the National league will soon be in a jam for first, second and third positions if the Giants don't stir out of their slump. After dropping three out of four to the weakling Phillies, they tumbled before another weak club when they lost Thursday's game to the Braves in Boston, 2 to 0. It was another pitcher's fight, Dana Fillingim held the Giants to five hits, but if the Giants' attack had been working they should have won, for Phil Douglas and Cecil Cawley gave the Braves only seven hits.

The Cardinals aggravated the congestion in the three top stories when they climbed a little higher by defeating the Pirates in Pittsburgh, 3 to 2. The Cards are in third, about a game and a half behind the Pirates. The Dodgers didn't play, and are about two and a half games out of second place. Rain caused the postponement of the Dodgers-Phillies game in Brooklyn. The Reds beat the Cubs, 4 to 1, in Chicago.

The Yankees are spanking right along. They beat the Red Sox, 5 to 4, at the Polo grounds Thursday, and they will start west with a comfortable lead. The Indians came to life long enough to win one from the Tigers, 5 to 2, in Cleveland. The Senators and Athletics remain virtually tied for third and fourth places, as their game in Philadelphia was cancelled by raindrops.

The Browns, whose specialty is extra-inning games with low scores, were carried into the twelfth inning Thursday before they could win from the White Sox, 4 to 3.

JIM THORPE RELEASED BY PORTLAND CLUB

Portland, Ore., June 1.—Jim Thorpe, star athlete and baseball player, is to play a free agent in the baseball world as the result of his unconditional release last night by the Portland club of the Pacific Coast league, to bring that band of ball players within the twenty-player limit now effective.

Short Pegs

THE MEN who handle the big fighters and big fights could just count their passion for bunk, they might get together this summer on a great all-season program of championship contests, giving work to all champions and a school of able challengers.

JOHNNY BUFF

claims to have been ill, and perhaps he was. But he wasn't ill when he ducked over to England leaving little Midget Smith on the dock with a guarantee of $30,000 to Buff for a fifteen-round heavyweight championship decision fight. Smith still deserves first call. Then there's Carl Treumaine. Next boy is the twice-champion veteran, Pete Herman. And finally, Joe Lynch, another late champion, deserves a fight.

JOHNNY KILBANE

has retired, but won't admit it, and therefore still clutters the situation. Andy Chaney, who beat him twice before, deserves their public nagging they will agree to fight. Then Leonard and Jack Britton should step into the ring and settle that argument of theirs.

THE MIDDLEWEIGHTS

HORNSBY-WILLIAMS RECORDS ARE SIMILAR

St. Louis, June 1.—A striking similarity is found in the home-run records of Kenneth Williams, of the Browns, and Rogers Hornsby, of the Cardinals, who today began the third month of the baseball season tied for the lead in home-run hitting honors, each with 13 to his credit.

Each of the local sluggers has made ten circuit drives at home and three on the road. While Williams made nine of his home runs in April and four in May, Hornsby reversed this order by getting nine in May and four in April.

Hornsby gained a ten-day lead on his American league rival by smashing out his first home run on the first day of the season, whereas Williams did not register a homer until April 22.

Williams leads his National league rival in the total number of runs batted in by circuit clubs, driving in thirteen runners ahead of him with his homers, while Hornsby has only followed nine runners around the bases on his four base hits.

OGG ACCEPTS TULSA JOB

Frank Ogg, professional at Ingleside for several years, has tendered his resignation effective immediately, and will leave soon for Tulsa, Okla., where he has accepted a position as professional at the Golf club. Ogg, a brother of Willie Ogg, former professional at East Lake, and of Robert Ogg, professional at Piedmont, has a large number of friends locally who will regret to see him give up his post at Ingleside.

According to Ingleside officials no successor has been named, and it is known that a well-known Atlanta professional has been tendered the position being vacated by Ogg. No names were given out by Ingleside officials, but the vacancy will be filled at once, it was stated.

Ogg's departure takes a probable national open entry away from Atlanta. He competed last year in the event, held at Washington, and while he was quite a distance from the top at the close he succeeded in making several nice scores.

It was his first big tournament, and the confidence he gained during it would have proved valuable in the approaching affair.

According to reports the club at Tulsa is a large one and immensely wealthy. The membership will rival that of any of the local courses. Financially Ogg stands to profit by the shift, but Atlanta golf players regret to see him leave.

DARGAN WINS AT BROOKHAVEN

Bad weather failed to prevent playing of the finals of the Adams-Cates tournament at Brookhaven, Milton Dargan, Jr., defeating J. H. Taylor for the trophy. The margin was 1 up and both players were in excellent form. Now that the Adams-Cates event has been completed, Brookhaven golfers are getting ready for the evening board trophy tournament. Qualifying rounds will be played today and Saturday. Handicaps will apply in match play only, the contestants qualifying from scratch.

Brookhaven handicaps were given a recent shakeup and players are requested to look up their new rating before starting out in this tournament. The governing board's tournament usually draws a fine field at Brookhaven.

"PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER WITH DUGSBAER"

DEAR OLD DEAR: Is it right that Gink left off baseball umpiring because he made a fortune on pop battles? Yours until trouble starts, DICK KENNEDY.

GINK NEVER caught a pop bottle. When he was umpiring he dodged everything, like a coward in a war.

HE IS NOW the best golfer operating in our fashionable Newport bunkers. He has put his fighting career behind him.

HE IS A MAN who hates publicity. Whenever he came to New York he used to ride in a closed van with a cop at each end to keep off strangers.

LIKE JACK DEMPSEY, the love letters he got annoyed him.

HE RECEIVED millions of love letters. His tailor would love to have his bills paid, his landlord would love to get the rent, his grocer would love to grab some installments on the lima beans.

BUT GINK didn't requite their affection.

MANY PILOTS LAND IN RACE

Chicago, June 1.—Nine of the thirteen balloons which left Milwaukee yesterday in the national contest to pick three entrants in the international race in Switzerland were still in the air tonight, according to latest reports.

Three of the great bags descended today and one, piloted by Ray Douglas, of Springfield, Ill., was forced down yesterday in the outskirts of Milwaukee. Of those remaining in the air tonight, five were reported over Lake Erie, drifting eastward, and four were bound directly south toward Texas. One of the nine, however, a naval bag, filled with helium, was not officially in the contest, its flight having been experimental.

The balloon which covered the longest distance before landing was that piloted by J. S. McKibben, of St. Louis, which descended at Fulton, Mo., at 3 o'clock this afternoon after having covered approximately 350 miles. Captain John Berry, of when Von Hoffman, of St. Louis, landed about ten miles west of here, according to reports.

Lands at 8:30

Cleveland, Ohio, June 1.—A large balloon passed over Willoughby, Ohio, about twenty miles east of here at 8:30 o'clock tonight. It was headed from the east and was flying toward the west. The balloon later landed about ten miles west of here, according to reports.

Two Land Near Fulton

Fulton, Mo., June 1.—The balloon piloted by J. S. McKibben, of St. Louis, an independent entry, landed ten miles northeast of here shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon. Fulton is about 110 miles northwest of St. Louis.

The second balloon of the national elimination race entries to land near here came down north of this city tonight. It was piloted by Warren, of Brookville, Ohio. Shortly after noon J. S. McKibben, of St. Louis, landed ten miles west of here.

Hoffman Drifts Back

Milwaukee, Wis., June 1.—Bernard Von Hoffman, pilot of a balloon which came down near Fort Wayne, Ind., today in the national balloon race, had gone as far east as the St. Charles river in Ontario when a capricious wind reversed its direction, according to a dispatch to The Milwaukee Journal today by Von Hoffman's aide.

"We shot into the air to a 5,000-foot altitude almost immediately after starting," said the dispatch. "We sailed over the lake in a southeasterly direction and crossed the Michigan shore line at about Fort Sheldon. We passed Grand Rapids, Jackson, Adrian and Detroit, after sunrise today.

"We were crossing the St. Charles river in the tip of southern Ontario when Von Hoffman decided that the five-mile-an-hour pace we were making would never keep us in the race for distance. He pulled the valve handle and sought a lower level to catch a brisker breeze. At this time we were at an altitude of 5,000 feet.

"At the level between 1,500 and 2,000 feet we struck a 35-mile wind from the north and we carried it over the course we had just traveled. We flew back over Michigan and soon crossed the Indiana line. We were approaching Fort Wayne when Von Hoffman decided to descend."

FINE RECORD FOR MERCER

Macon, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Statistics released last night by Coach Josh Cody show that despite early season injuries which badly crippled the Orange and Black nine throughout the major portion of the season, Mercer hung up a creditable record on the diamond during the 1922 campaign.

The achievements of the Baptists were especially commendable in view of the fact that "Consuelo" Smith, around whom the entire Baptist outfit was moulded and who was regarded as the outstanding satellite of the infield, was injured at the outset of the season, his crippled condition knocking Mercer's chances for a top even before the season got under full steam.

As furnished by Coach Cody the full record of the campaign is told in the following figures:

RESULTS IN TENNIS MEET

Chiswick, England, June 1.—(By the Associated Press.)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, of San Francisco, won her match today in the women's singles for the Middlesex tennis championship, defeating Miss Stratford, 6-1, 6-2.

The women's doubles, Mrs. Mollie Burested Mallory, the American woman champion, and Miss Edith Sigourney, of Boston, defeated Misses Marrett and Best, 6-2, 6-4. In the men's doubles, Arthur and Crawley defeated Stowe and Owen, 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Ryan also reached the semifinals by disposing of Miss Stratford, a promising young English girl. She will next meet Mrs. Peacock, former champion of India.

Mrs. Mallory and Miss Sigourney later reached the semifinals in the women's doubles by defeating Mrs. Praeger and Mrs. McDougall, 6-0, 6-2. The semifinals of the men's doubles, J. V. Gilbert and S. M. Doust defeated Thaler and Crawley. The score of the first set was 6-0, after which Crawley was forced to abandon the game because of an attack of lumbago.

Not only from the point of losing games has Dobbis suffered his bumps, but also lost two of the most valuable defensive men in Knaupp and Smith. To date the Pe lanch shows few

Tire Competition ~ Good, Bad and Indifferent

THE average American was raised on the idea that the more people who competed for his trade the better off he was.

Like many good ideas, it has several sides.

They all show themselves clearly in the tire business.

There are tires which prefer to compete largely on a price basis. Believing that the public is more interested in the dollars and cents they pay than in the worth of what they get.

On the other hand, U. S. Royal Cords believe differently.

And car-owners who use Royal Cords have a plus feeling which they get both from actual experience, and because they realize the integrity of the manufacturer.

People don't think of Royal Cords as high-priced tires. They think of them as better tires.

Prices on United States Passenger Car Tires and Tubes, effective May 8th, are not subject to war-tax, the war-tax having been included.

BOXING SITUATION IN NEW YORK CAUSING ANXIETY

Nearby All Real Fights Followed By Bad Decisions
And Much Scandalous Talk
Atlanta Crackers Ready to Start Real OffensiveBoxing Commission Unable to Cope With Situation—Dempsey Slowly But Surely Losing Popularity.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Recently a man who had been in boxing for twenty-five years stopped in to see me to ask if I would do him a favor. The matter was one of common courtesy, and I agreed to try to do what he asked.

"And hurry up about it," he said, half-jokingly. "If you don't, it'll all be over."

There is something of that belief among the majority of fighters, managers and promoters. It seems as if the game cannot be run properly or honestly enough to insure its continuance.

The fact is that scarcely a match has been held in New York this year that has not been followed by scandalous talk; that the boxing commission has shown itself entirely unable to handle the situation.

The scandalous decisions that have been turned in by some of the "judges," especially in the Jack Sharkey-Pepper Martin fight on Ebbets field, have caused the fans to a high pitch of resentment. In that Martin-Sharkey fight the judges seemed to have made their decision long before the fight started. One of them, in fact, announced to reporters that Martin was winning as early as the fifth round, and spent the entire period of the fight arguing that Martin was doing the fighting, even in face of the fact that he was taking a boxing lesson and getting trimmed in practically every round.

As for the future, we have a prospect of a battle between Dempsey and Harry Wells, and no better evidence is needed to show that Dempsey doesn't want the fight than Kearns' demand for $500,000 to meet the New Orleans negro.

If a white man wants to raise the color line, that is his privilege; but to demand more money for a second-rate fight than Russia's soviet debt, merely means that the white man doesn't want to fight at all.

Dempsey's money did not help him much toward popularity, and his constant making of statements to reporters and denying them the next hour hurt him also. The fight that he is much more popular than he was as a shipyard hero.

As a matter of fact, Dempsey and his sweet-scented managers are liable to lose a lot of standing and what is more, money; if this Pittsburgh boy, Harry Greb, keeps coming Dempsey, of course, could beat Greb and beat him handily, that is, if he is likely to draw more spectators than any battle.

That is the situation in New York. The boxing commission is unable to cope with the situation. The fans are losing interest in the game. The managers are making bad decisions. The fighters are losing popularity. The game is in a state of decline.

Flowers-Langford Fight Again Postponed; to Be Held MondayColored Gladiators to Continue Training for Bout, and Big Attendance Is Expected.

BY MIKE THOMAS.

The all-colored fight card postponed from last Tuesday night to last night was again postponed and will be held on Monday night. The same card will appear on this date with Tiger Flowers and Sam Langford in the main 10-round bout. These two fighters are working out every afternoon at a Marietta street gymnasium. The workout starts at 1:30 and lasts until about 3 o'clock. Large numbers of fight fans have been attending and have been impressed with the good condition of both fighters.

Many local fans figured that Sam Langford would come to Atlanta with the idea that he would be taking on "a set-up," but Sam looked up Tiger's record, and for once Sam says that he is pleased that these extra days have been allowed by the ring interfering. He wants to get into first-class shape. With a couple of more days in which to train, he is going to be able to step ten rounds at top speed.

Flowers is always in wonderful condition and he knows that this fight with Langford will put him in the running for the best in the ring if he gives the Boston Tar Baby a lacing. Flowers has this in his mind, and he is going to show the local fans that he is a whole lot better than they give him credit for being. Tiger has been fighting some great battles and his boxing skill has improved 100 per cent in the past few months. His victory over Frankie Murphy, of Charleston, shows this, because Murphy in his appearance in a local ring has proved to be the most skeptical fan that he is a master boxer.

Those who have followed the boxing game closely have seen that Tiger Flowers is a contender for the middleweight title, now held by Panama Joe Gans. Gans fought the

GOVERNMENT COTTON CROP REPORT EXPECTED TODAY

Sharp Breaks in Prices In Thursday's Selling; High Prices Predicted

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE TRANSACTIONS

Irregularity in Stock Trading, But Advances Made by Many Issues

With long interests clearing their holdings and the market generally preparing for the expected government crop condition report Friday at 11 o'clock eastern standard time, cotton prices were subjected to sharp breaks in Thursday's trading.

The close in New York was at an advance of 3 points in January with other months 2 to 19 points. The opening, which was at a decline of 4 points to an advance of 5, July sold up to 20.81 and December to 20.12. Increased offerings were met, however, and liquidation became greater after the weather report had been read. The market was very irregular and before the downward movement had stopped, July reached 20.34 and December 19.32. The general market was 12 to 31 points lower. Reports of a firm spot basis in the south and trade buying brought a rally of 12 to 18 points. New York spot middling was at 21.00 per pound.

Six more private estimates were issued Thursday, ranging from 68 per cent to 71.8 of normal condition. The Journal of Commerce estimate was 71.8, while Watkins' Bureau figure was 69.5 with an indicated crop of 10,800,000 bales. The New Orleans Times-Picayune placed the condition at 68 per cent with an indicated crop of 10,400,000 bales. A condition of 68.6 was the estimate of Clement, Curtis & Co. None of these estimates had any noticeable effect on the market. An average of 68.7 per cent had been established by thirteen private houses in their estimates. Guesses by 78 members of the New York cotton exchange average 69.5.

The weekly weather and crop report stated that cotton made "very good progress in extreme southern Georgia, but poor progress elsewhere" in the state. Dispatches to this department indicate that north Georgia farmers at least are twenty-five days behind with their cotton planting. Cotton already planted, these reports continued, has been damaged badly by cold, cloudy and wet weather. The acreage in this section of the state will be much smaller than that of last year as a result of unfavorable weather conditions. "Early planted cotton shows fair progress and stand in Oklahoma, but it still is in need of cultivation in most central and eastern portions," said the report. "While weather conditions improved in Texas, there was little change in the condition of cotton, which is mostly rather poor, except fairly good in the southern portion. Cotton made excellent progress in Arkansas, except where too much rain fell in the southern portion, but frequent rains hindered cultivation in Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia. Cotton made very good progress in extreme southern Georgia, but poor progress elsewhere in that state because of cool, cloudy and wet weather. Latter part of week was too cool in Carolinas; otherwise conditions are favorable in most portions of those states."

Liquidations by longs also caused losses in the New Orleans exchange, the market dropping from 2 to 9 points under the previous close soon after the call. A new demand developed, however, when July reached 20.41. This was caused by reports of too much rain in the eastern half of the belt. Prices advanced 8 to 14 points higher than Wednesday's close by the end of the first hour of trading, July selling at 20.63. Reading of the crop and weather report brought fresh selling and prices sagged. In the late trading quotations were at their lowest levels of the day. The list stood at net losses of 15 to 34 points. The close was at a net decline of 8 to 34 points, with July at 20.16. New Orleans spot middling remained unchanged at 20.50 cents per pound. Atlanta middling lost 10 points, 20.50 being the day's quotation.

In a statement to The Atlanta Constitution Thursday, J. S. Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton Association, revealed figures indicating yield in cotton this year, estimated consumption, and a forecast of prices under various yield figures. The scale of predicted prices ranges from 35 cents per pound, if the yield is approximately 11,000,000 bales, to $1 per pound, if the yield is about 6,500,000. The figures were compiled by statisticians of the association, and particular attention is given to an estimated consumption demand of 14,000,000 for the next cotton year, which "will not be available."

Many Questionnaires.

Mr. Wannamaker said: "For the purpose of ascertaining the views of the leading experts on the question of cotton supplies and prices, the American Cotton Association mailed out thousands of questionnaires, and we beg herewith to submit a synopsis of the replies. (These questionnaires were not sent to the producers, but to experts in the other lines of the cotton industry, including the leading cotton authorities of the world.)

"1. Estimates of indicated yield as of May 22, 1922: 8,500,000 bales.

"2. Estimated consumption of American cotton from the growing crop for next cotton year: 14,000,000 bales. (But will not be available.)

"3. Estimate of undetachable cotton now in American stocks: 1,250,000 bales.

"4. In my (the expert's) judgment, a yield of American cotton from the growing crop, based upon the following estimated production, will bring: "If 11,000,000 bales, 35 cents per pound.

"If 10,000,000 bales, 45 cents per pound.

"If 9,000,000 bales, 60 cents per pound.

"If 8,000,000 bales, 80 cents per pound.

"If 7,000,000 bales, 90 cents per pound.

"If 6,500,000 bales, $1.00 per pound.

"Likely to Overestimate.

"Many of those making the above estimates as to indicated yield, point out that they expect the government to show an estimate 25 per cent higher. They emphasize the fact that they are satisfied the government will overestimate the crop this season as badly as it underestimated it last season. However, they also point out the certainty of a famine in cotton supplies regardless of the possibilities of the present crop yield. While the above report, as explained, is made from questionnaires in the various lines of the cotton industry, it might not be amiss to refer to the nearness of the correctness of the report on acreage and indicated yield issued by the American Cotton Association at this time of the boll weevil."

Revival of Foreign Commerce.

"Settlement of the German reparations question is now a certainty," he continued. "The adjustment of this means an enormous increased demand for cotton. World leaders are concentrating their efforts upon the restoration of commerce, realizing that if we are in this way prospering, can be restored. As a result, the law of supply and demand will function. The demand is assured. What about the supplies?

"The south will maintain its monopoly of cotton production the next eighteen months. We have pointed out that the July crop of India was only 40 per cent of normal last season, and it is now reported that the crop of July and August is likely to be small. The fall crop is some 70 per cent of that of last year, and wool production 15 per cent less than an average. The advancing prices of cotton, hemp, flax, and silk are indications that the general shortage of fiber is now a price factor. Higher prices for cotton, hemp, flax and wool seem especially likely because of a shortage of each of these and because of the relation between the price of these fibers."

Mr. Wannamaker declared that the unchangeable law of cause and effect and of supply and demand indicates plainly that the world is facing the "most acute famine of raw cotton since the war between the states," before the 1923 cotton crop reaches the market.
